Leaves its mark—every one of the painful disorders that prey upon women. They fade the face, waste the figure, ruin the temper, wither you up, make you old before your time.

Get well: That's the way to look well. Cure the troubles and ailments that beset you, with Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It's a guaranteed remedy for all the delicate weaknesses, derangements, and diseases peculiar to women.

It regulates and promotes all the proper functions, improves digestion, enriches the blood, dispels aches and pains, melancholy and nervousness, brings refreshing sleep, and restores health and strength. It's a powerful general, as well as uterine, tonic and nervine, imparting vigor and strength to the entire system. Contains no alcohol to inebriate; no syrup or sugar to derange digestion.

It's a legitimate medicine—not a beverage—and the only one for woman's ailments, so certain in its effects that it can be guaranteed. If it doesn't benefit or cure, in every case, you have your money back.

FOLDING BEDS

You Can Do Almost Anything

With our Gosben folding bed. There used to be an idea that two into one wouldn't go; this bed upsets the notion completely. It doesn't, like the chameleon, change its color, but it does change its character, and it is as handsome as a bed at night as it is as a book-case in the day-time. It is one of the happiest combinations of modern ingenuity, and in an instant it turns your sleeping apartment into a handsomely appointed library. Perhaps you have an idea that this double advantage carries with it a double cost. It does not. Call and see it and learn the price.

HARRISON'S PLURALITY..... 106
HARRISON'S MAJORITY..... 46

New York, Nov. 7.—The national political campaign came to a close on Saturday night, and to-day the various state committees and county committees and ward committees throughout the length and breadth of the country are oiling their machinery and giving the final instructions to the workers. It has been one of the quietest and most commonplace of presidential campaigns since the war, although in its closing days some amount of enthusiasm was worked up here and there. On the whole, however, it has been a campaign of education rather than of big processions and great hurrahs. It has been anything but a harvest for the makers of transparencies, uniforms, torches and the numerous other equipments of political clubs in previous campaigns. Yet it could not be termed a lethargic campaign, for the total number of big meetings that has been held over the country far exceeds that of '84 and '88, and eminent orators of both parties, who in previous campaigns have confined themselves to their own state, have gone from the west to the east, and from the east to the west, and hundreds of the speeches that have been delivered will form a notable addition to political literature. The absence of the great amount of brass band enthusiasm may be ascribed to the fact that both of the presidential candidates have been tried, and that their merits or demerits as the chief executive of the nation are thoroughly known to the voters of the country. So, too, with the issues. The fight to-morrow will not be so much one of men as of parties, and it will be made upon the issues of the maintenance of the protective tariff, although in the southern states the voters will be considerably influenced in depositing their ballots by the prevailing belief that republican success would be followed by the passage of what is known in political parlance as the "force bill." In quite a number of states the purity of the ballot-box will be insured by the fact that the election will take place under the provisions of the Australian ballot law, and which not only stands as a barrier against irregular practices, but is the foe of illiterate voters.

STATUS OF THE BETTING.

Cleveland Has the Call at Odds Among New Yorkers.

New York, Nov. 7.—Fifty thousand dollars of democratic money was deposited at the Hoffman house on Wednesday night to be bet on Cleveland's election. About $40,000 of this was covered. It was also announced by Edward Kearney, a democrat, that there was $50,000 more ready to be placed in the same way, but no part of this was accepted. After the democratic fund of $100,000 went up the Harrison betters asked for odds, so that by Thursday the figures in Cleveland's favor were 10 to 9. The betting continued steady at this figure, and the closing quotations on Saturday night showed very few bets registered at even money, George Wheelock, a bookmaker, has been the nerviest of the Harrison plungers. He has placed $50,000 or thereabouts on Harrison, betting both on the state and the general result, and still has a margin of $16,000 left. After he succeeds in placing this he will rest on his oars.

Bookmakers John and James Mahoney have acted as agents in placing a great deal of money supposed to emanate from the democratic campaign managers. It is common report also that they have wagered their own money on Cleveland, notwithstanding the fact that they lost $67,000 on the election of 1888. Michael F. Dwyer has been another persistent plunger on the Cleveland side. His wager of $20,000 to $12,000 that the democrats will win in this state is the largest made. Most of Dwyer's bets have been placed this way, he not caring to lay much money on the general result, evidently believing this to be a very uncertain quantity. Ex-Alderman Walton Storm has also made some heavy bets on Cleveland, both upon his election and upon the result in this state. Storm stands to lose $19,000 if Harrison wins and $6,000 if he carries the state of New York.

Edward Kearney has a very large sum staked on the result, just how much only he himself knows. It is probably nearer $50,000 than $25,000. The number of smaller bets is legion. Wagers varying from $500 to $5,000 have been common on the exchanges. The $100 better and the man with $50 burning in his pocket have infested the Hoffman house nightly and found little trouble in placing their money in most instances. "Billy" Edwards claims to have held up to Saturday night $100,000 of stakes, most of which is bet from even money to 10 to 9 on the general result.

FIVE DOLLARS APIECE.

The Frick Floater Fund Gets in Its Work.

New York, Nov. 7.—All day long Saturday and far into the night the process of grinding out United States deputy marshals went on at the federal building, and, according to pretty well authenticated reports, it went on in private houses, club rooms, detective agencies and other places.

There is no mistaking the fact that the republicans, aided by John I. Davenport and United States Marshal Jacobus, have resolved to try and cut down the democratic majority in this city on election day by intimidation.

It is quite possible that all the bluster made by the republicans as to the czar-like authority of United States deputy marshals on election day is only a cover for the employment of the Carnegie-Frick campaign fund. Many people are of the opinion that the claim so audaciously set forth by the republicans that United States deputy marshals need pay no attention whatever to state law, and that they would resort to force if necessary to carry out this doctrine is nothing more nor less than a blind to shield the republican party from its real intention to buy the votes of the men who are ostensibly employed as deputy marshals.

Whether intended as a blind or not the employment of so many mercenaries can only mean an attack in one form or another on the personal liberty of the citizen and the purity of the ballot box.

Such a hetereogenous crowd of tramps, bummers and loafers as were brought to the federal building was perhaps never seen before assembled in the service of any government. There were, it is true, some decent-looking, although poorly-dressed men in the squads that came in rapid succession to be sworn in, but they really appeared to be ashamed of themselves.

Some of them admitted that they were paid up, and that it was the pittance of $5 for their services on election day with a fancied supposition that something additional might be done afterward that induced them to become the hirelings of Davenport. Not a single one of the whole lot who was interrogated seemed to have the slightest idea as to the real nature of the duties devolving on a United States deputy marshal under the law. All they knew was that they were to receive instructions, and that they would do the best they knew how to carry them out.

One thing they all seemed to understand. This was that they were all expected to vote the republican ticket. That such an ill-appearing mob, picked up in great part from the slums and dives of the metropolis, should be ignorant is hardly to be wondered at. It would be supposed, however, that before being brought to the commissioners to be sworn in that they would be posted to the extent of knowing, at least in a general way, what performances they were to go through.

Fully one-half of them did not seem to realize that they were sworn until after they had left the presence of the commissioner. Many of them when told to hold up their right hand while the oath was being administered appeared to be under the impression that it was for the purpose of counting them that the request was made.

But Commissioners Shields and Deuel were kept so busy that neither of them had a moment's spare time. The task of swearing in the deputies seemed more congenial to Commissioner Deuel than it did to Commissioner Shields. Deuel is regarded as Davenport's confidential man.

During the evening the mob became so numerous that the commissioners were not able to swear them in as fast as United States Marshal Jacobus had put his stamp of regularity on them. The result was that the crowd completely blocked up the southern corridor and stairways of the postoffice. The impatience of the tramps and bummers became more manifest each minute that they were delayed, and many of them showed the ruffianly disposition that may be expected of them on election day.

They finally threw off all semblance of recognition of authority, and actually broke down the gates on the mezzanine floor, which were closed so as to allow only so many upstairs from time to time. "Throw down the gates," one of Davenport's henchmen exclaimed, and no sooner was the command uttered than down came the gates. The unfortunate watchman on guard felt anything but like Horatius.

He was driven to the wall, as if struck by a cyclone, and upstairs to be sworn in the mob rushed. No rebuke, whatever, was administered to any of them, and in a comparatively short time afterward they had been all sworn in as United States deputy marshals.

Long after the two commissioners left the building, private work went on in the office of the marshal and in Davenport's office.

Just how many were sworn in during the day at the federal building it would be impossible to tell. How many were sworn in elsewhere it would be equally impossible to tell. It is said that Davenport would have at least 5,000 altogether on active duty on election day, and many more will be held, it was said, in reserve in case any conflict occurs with the state or local authorities. It is understood that all the deputies will be armed.

MONEY IS POWERLESS.

It Will Not Save the Radicals This Year.

Chicago, Nov. 7.—Defeat, certain and overwhelming, awaits the republican party in that grand bunch of western states—Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota and Iowa. Every indication warrants the prediction that Grover Cleveland will receive the electoral votes in every one of the states named, not by small figures, but by sweeping majorities. It is a landslide. The republican party is about to be wiped out of existence. Demoralization has become a stampede. Their lines of battle are broken and whole battalions have surrendered without firing a shot. Scores of former leaders in the republican party are now working in the rank and file of democracy.

The Chicago Tribune to-day practically concedes overwhelming republican defeat. Every republican politician and committeeman in the west who has had an opportunity of ascertaining the correct condition of affairs knows and privately admits the certainty of republican defeat on November 8.

A few deluded and bigoted partisans are still foolish enough to bet small sums of money, which are eagerly picked up by democrats of betting proclivities.

Fifty thousand dollars arrived this afternoon from New Yory city with instructions to place it if possible at odds of 2 to 1 on Cleveland carrying New York state, or to give better odds if necessary, but at all events to place the money. The situation is unprecedented in the history of politics. Never before has a great political party in possession of power, having at its back the federal machinery of the country, and supplied with a corruption fund amounting to millions of dollars, faced election day with so near a certainty of defeat.

If all the Carnegies, Fricks and Wanamakers in th ecountry were to unlock their trasury vaults and pour into the coffers of the Martins, Dudleys, Quays and Davenports a corruption fund of tens of millions, the result would be the same. The republican party is doomed, and no power on earth can defeat the overwhelming verdict of the people in favor of Cleveland and tariff reform and honest government.

As a rule political "straws" are of little value in determining beforehand the result of an election. The following fragments of the canvass in Chicago can hardly be called "straws," but fairly well indicate the trend of public sentiment:

The board of trade has an actual membership of 1,800 and a working membership of between 500 and 600. In former years the republicans have had a large majority. To-day Joseph McDonald, an old member of the board, in two hours' time obtained the names of 128 members of the board of trade who had never voted a democratic ticket, but who will vote for Cleveland and Stevenson. Of the 500 members not 100 will vote the republican ticket.

A canvass of Marshall Field's wholesale house gav ethis result:

Cleveland, 1,600; Harrison, 200. Four years ago the vote in the same establishment stood: Cleveland, 600; Harrison, 800.

An ordinary canvass of precinct, ward or county, while fairly indicative of the result, is not strictly reliable. To satisfy their curiosity, a number of well-to-do democrats living in a precinct in the Eleventh ward determined to make a thorough canvass of their precinct for the purpose of absolutely ascertaining the situation. Four years ago the vote in their precinct stood: Harrison, 293; Cleveland, 135—a republican majority of 158. This year the vote will stand: Cleveland, 301; Harrison, 211—a democratic majority of 99.

This precinct is peopled by well-to-do citizens, own ng Gho ; .ft ft ft ft ft ft change in political sentiment is not due to any shifting of the population.

A FORECAST.

The Situation As Seen by a Press Association.

New York, Nov. 7.—The presidential election of 1892 is a unique thing in the face of the rumor that so many doubtful states are at issue between the great political parties. It is also unique in being the first in which it is conceded by all parties that the electoral votes of the nation will be divided among three great political organizations. The candidates will certainly be balloted for in the electoral college and to be elected to the presidency one of these men must receive a majority of all the votes cast or the election will be referred to the national house of representatives.

The advent of the people's party into national politics has constituted the great element of doubt in this presidential contest. The "solid south" of democracy and the "solid west" of republicans are both menaced by its encroachments, and on every page of the estimates a great interrogation point must mark to-day certain states that one or the other of the old parties have in the past been wont to claim as their political heritage. In this list may be named Alabama, Colorado, Kansas, Nevada, North Dakota, South Dakota, Nebraska, Wyoming and Idaho. While one or the other of the old political parties claim nearly all of these states in their estimated recapitulation yet each willingly admits that the people's party or fusion tickets will triumph in some of them. If to this list are added the old-time doubtful states of New York, New Jersey, Connecticut, Montana and West Virginia, the doubtful states in this election aggregate no less than 15 in number. While the three parties will probably not unanimously agree that all these states are to be placed in the doubtful column, the fact remains that on Tuesday night the American public will turn anxiously to these states, each and all, for the solution of the presidential contest.

The Electoral College.

The presidential college this year will consist of 444 members and the 444 electoral votes will, according to the present apportionment by congress, be distributed among the various states as follows:

Alabama	11	Nebraska	8
Arkansas	8	Nevada	3
California	9	New Hampshire	4
Colorado	4	New Jersey	10
Connecticut	4	New York	36
Delaware	3	North Carolina	11
Florida	4	North Dakota	3
Georgia	13	Ohio	23
Idaho	3	Oregon	4
Illinois	24	Pennsylvania	32
Indiana	15	Rhode Island	4
Iowa	13	South Carolina	9
Kansas	10	South Dakota	4
Kentucky	13	Tennessee	12
Louisiana	8	Texas	15
Maine	6	Vermont	14
Maryland	8	Virginia	12
Massachusetts	15	Washington	4
Michigan	14	West Virginia	6
Minnesota	9	Wisconsin	13
Mississippi	9	Wyoming	4
Missouri	17
Montana	13	Total	444

The Democratic Column.

The states which are admitted to be democratic are as follows:

Arkansas	8	Michigan	5
Delaware	3	Missouri	17
Florida	4	North Carolina	11
Georgia	13	South Carolina	9
Kentucky	13	Tennessee	12
Louisiana	8	Texas	15
Maryland	8	Virginia	12
Mississippi	9	Total	147

Republican Column.

The states which are admitted to be republican are:

California	9	Ohio	23
Illinois	24	Oregon	4
Iowa	13	Pennsylvania	32
Maine	6	Rhode Island	4
Massachusetts	15	Vermont	4
Michigan	9	Washington	4
Minnesota	9	Wisconsin	12
New Hampshire	4	Total	172

The Doubtful Column.

The following doubtful states, as thus estimated at the beginning, will cast the following electoral vote:

Alabama	11	New York	36
Colorado	4	Indiana	15
Kansas	10	New Jersey	10
Nevada	3	Connecticut	6
South Dakota	4	Montana	3
Nebraska	8	West Virginia	6
Wyoming	3
Idaho	3	Total	125

Of the 15 doubtful states Nevada, with its electoral votes is practically conceded to the people's party by both of the leading parties, thus leaving only 14 states actively in contention. Of these the democrats make the loudest claim of Alabama, New Jersey and West Virginia, swelling their total to 174. The republicans express the greatest confidence in carrying Colorado, South Dakota, Idaho and Nebraska, which would swell their total to 191.

Admitting the claims of the two old parties and conceding Nevada to Weaver, the very doubtful states then remain as New York, Indiana, Connecticut Kansas, North Dakota, Wyoming and Montana. These states have a total of 76 votes, and of these 76 votes the democrats must gain 49 in order to win and the republicans must secure 52.

While on these figures the republicans would appear to have the advantage, this presumption is not borne out when it is remembered that the carrying of Kansas, North Dakota and Wyoming by the people's party would insure to the democratic advantage, by tending to render a choice in the electoral college impossible, and thus throwing the election into the democratic house of representatives, where Cleveland would surely triumph.

What Will be Voted for Tuesday.

In addition to electing a president and vice-president, the people of the United States will next Tuesday elect 353 congressmen, this being the number which, according to reapportionment, is to compose the Fifty-third congress. The states which elect legislatures to choose senators to take the places of republican senators are:

California,	New York.
Connecticut,	North Dakota,
Maine,	Pennsylvania.
Massachusetts,	Rhode Island,
Michigan,	Vermont,
Minnesota,	Washington,
Nebraska,	Wisconsin,
Nevada,	Wyoming.

Those which will elect legislatures to elect senators to fill vacancies caused by the retirement of democratic senators are:

Delaware,	Missouri.
Florida,	New Jersey,
Indiana,	Tennessee,
Maryland,	Virginia,
Mississippi.	West Virginia.

Thus upon the result of the coming election also depends the political personnel of 26 senators to be elected to take their seat at the same time the new president is inaugurated, 16 of them being elected to succeed republican senators and 10 being elected to succeed democratic senators.

In the states of Kansas, South Dakota and South Carolina the legislatures chosen next Tuesday will also each elect a senator to succeed one whose term expires March 4, 1895, the retiring senators in Kansas and South Dakota being republicans and in South Carolina a democrat.

SENATOR HILL.

Earnest Appeal to His Neighbors in Behalf of Cleveland.

Elmira, N. Y., Nov. 7.—Senator Hill while here spoke as follows:

"I may not live to address you again. You know the history of the Chicago convention. There is no need to go into that again. You know I never look back on a convention. After a convention you know I place my guns against our common enemy and keep them there.

"Friends and neighbors, I have no grievances. Grover Cleveland needs no eulogy here. You know him to be honest and competent. I have trusted you in the past; you have trusted me. We have never deceived each other. The democracy of Chemung county is part and parcel of the great organized democracy. The eyes of the country are upon the Empire state. I repeat to you:

"The duty of the hour is to support democratic principles and the regularly nominated candidates. Remember, this is Mr. Hill pleading for Cleveland and democracy in Elmira.

"Do your duty. I think I can bespeak a united democracy in New York state. Remember, my old friends, this is not a question of candidates, but principles. Let us, let us march shoulder to shoulder, with a steady tread, like the old Macedonian phalanx, and victory is ours next Tuesday."

LIABLE TO BE TROUBLE.

Deputy Marshals to Have a Hot Time in Missouri.

Kansas City, Mo., Nov. 7.—The events of yesterday have materially increased the prospects of bloodshed next Tuesday.

The firm determination of the republican authorities to place the federal deputy marshals inside the voting booths on election day has aroused the democrats. It will be met with an equally firm determination on the part of the democratic county and city authorities to resist federal interference. No federal supervisor has been appointed here, and on this and Judge Brewer's decision that the deputies could not legally occupy the voting booths, the democrats base their resistance to the presence of federal deputies in the voting places.

Chairman Middlebrook, of the republican county committee, called a meeting of the republican judges and clerks of election and instructed them to allow the federal deputies to be present and urged that force be employed if necessary.

Recorder of Votes Owsley to-day instructed all the judges and clerks that the deputies have no rights beyond those of ordinary officers as to presence in the place of voting. The board of police commissioners has given instructions to the police to arrest federal deputies, and has issued a call to 170 of the most prominent citizens of the city inviting them to volunteer their services on election day to preserve the peace.

CAUGHT IN THE ACT.

Republicans Ready to Buy Thousands of Votes

New York, Nov. 7.—The World this morning says: "David A. Dishler, the Utica gambler and political thug, for whose apprehension a reward of $2,500 has been offered by Gov. Flower, has been acting as an accredited agent of the republican party in shipping negroes from Tennessee into West Virginia, Virginia and New Jersey to vote the republican ticket. Dishler's employer is Chairman Charles W. Hackett, of "blocks of one" and "confidential circular" fame.

The World prints a fac-simile of a letter alleged to be written by Dishler to a Utica saloonkeeper named Joseph Frick, in which the writer goes into details regarding his nefarious work.

WASHINGTON.

A Very Lively Three Cornered Campaign.

Seattle, Wash., Nov. 7.—Democrats, republicans and populists are equally sanguine of carrying Washington on the presidential ticket, but the chances are slightly in favor of the republicans.

There are 62,000 votes to be cast and probably 50,000 will be polled. The prohibitionists add to the uncertainty created by the people's party with regard to the general result, but neither really stand any chance. While the prohibitionists claim 10,000 votes they will fall far short of it. The populists again claim over 20,000, but will do exceedingly well if they get one-half of that.

If populists and prohibitionists cut into republicans more than democrats, as claimed, in state issues, the probabilities are in favor of Snively, democrat, being elected governor; otherwise McGraw, republican will be elected.

As to the national result most of the expressed predictions favor Cleveland.

MAKING THE CLAIMS.

What Both Parties in New York Think of the Situation.

New York, Nov. 7.—The headquarters of the republican and democratic national committees wore a somewhat deserted appearance to-day, most of those who have been bearing the brunt of the immense amount of work accomplished by both organizations having left for their respective homes in order to cast their votes. Many prominent men of both parties, however, dropped in during the morning, and at both headquarters confidence was expressed concerning the outcome of to-morrow.

At republican headquarters everybody seemed to be of the opinion that the re-election of President Harrison was a foregone conclusion. In fact, so sure were they of this that they were willing to cast aside the electoral vote of New York, as a factor in the contest. It was claimed that the following states were absolutely certain to be found in the republican column: California, Colorado, Idaho, Illinois, Iowa, Kansas, Maine, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Nebraska, New Hampshire, Ohio, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, Vermont, Washington, Wyoming, New York, Indiana, Connecticut and Wisconsin.

This would give the republicans a total of 257 votes, or thirty-four more than necessary for a choice.

Even omitting from this list the thirty-six votes of New York, but two votes from other states would be needed, and those would certainly be secured from some of the states that are marked as extremely doubtful, and which comprise Montana, the two Dakotas and West Virginia.

Nevada was conceded to the populists.

At democratic headquarters, however, the claims of the dominant party were criticised as being unwarranted by the situation and the actual facts. On the wall of the room hitherto occupied by Chairman Harrity was posted the final estimate of the democratic strength, which claimed a total of 229 votes, or six more than is necessary, and divided between the following states: Alabama, Arkansas, Delaware, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maryland, Mississippi, Michigan, Missouri, North Carloina, New Jersey, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas, Virginia, West Virginia, New York, Indiana and Montana.

The same statement gives the republicans but 155 electoral votes outright, concedes to the people's party and fusionists eighteen electoral votes in Nebraska, Nevada, North and South Dakota, and classes as doubtful, but favoring the democracy, Connecticut, Wisconsin, and Illinois, with their total of forty-two votes. It is noticeable that in this prognostication California, Colorado and Minnesota, which have all been claimed certain for Cleveland are conceded to the republicans.

The people's party has not regarded it as necessary to keep open house in New York at any time during the campaign, and consequently calculations and speculations of the leaders of the new element cannot be brought into comparison with the claims of the old parties. One thing certain, however, is that the old parties are inclined to under-estimate the strength of the new element, and that both are likely to be surprised within the next 48 hours.

Outside, however, of the roseate hue expressed at one and the other of the headquarters the fact remains that New York still retains her proud eminence as the pivotal state. Their claims to the contrary, notwithstanding the republicans, must have her electoral vote if President Harrison is to be re-elected. On the other hand, should the democrats fail to capture the state their cause would be a lost one save for the possibility that the populists may gain a sufficient number of votes to throw the election into the house of representatives. To sum the situation up in a nut-shell, the party that carries New York is not sure of success, while the party that loses it is likely to be defeated.

SENATOR OSBORN.

A Republican Arrested for Illegal Registration.

New York, Nov. 7.—State Senator Osborn, of Poughkeepsie, having learned that a warrant had been issued for his arrest at the instance of Assistant District Attorney Mott on the affidavit of a hotel keeper named H. N. Bain, appeared before Commissioner Shields this morning and surrendered himself.

Lawyer Abram Rose argued that Senator Osborne had been a resident and voter from the same district for 40 years, and the case was analogous to that of Tom Platt. The decision was then made that he was entitled to vote in Tioga county and that the fact of his being in Albany attending to his official duties did not interfere with his rights as a voter at his home.

The senator was admitted to bail in $1,500, to appear on November 14. Frank Lown, of Poughkeepsie, became surety for the amount.

The arrest was made on the charge that Senator Osborn was not entitled to register in the Second election district. It was claimed that he had become a resident of Albany and not of Poughkeepsie.

GRIFFIN'S CRACK.

Republicans Must Choose Between Democrats.

That was a crusher, the crack of Charlie Griffin at the Ashley Memorial hall meeting Saturday night.

He said that in this congressional fight it was simply a question of which two democrats should be elected.

It was a black eye for Ashley and will have its effect.

Vote for Ritchie.

SOUTH CAROLINA.

Cleveland Will Have Forty Thousand Majority.

Charleston, S. C., Nov. 7.—While there is a perfect election fever in the northeast and west it is as quiet here as if there were no elections ever known in South Carolina. No one seems to know, care, or think anything about South Carolina politics and the only interest here is in the result in other states. There is practically no fear of any other party slipping in and capturing the electoral vote from the democrats.

The republicans have been suspiciously quiet and may be reserving all of their energies until election day with a view to "swooping down" upon the napping democrats and surprising them.

The United States marshal has appointed deputies for all the city polling places, but this has been done in every election since the reconstruction period and it makes no sensation to speak of.

The only element of doubt that exists in the election to-morrow is the printing of the democratic ballots. It is said that it is only the presidential elector tickets that are of illegal size, the state tickets being of the required pattern and this gives color to the rumors of bad faith on the part of the alliance men who control the democratic machine.

Most of the county chairmen have been warned, and if they desire to do so this fault can be remedied, but on the other hand most of the county chairmen are alliance men, too, and it is doubtful if they will correct the mistake unless State Chairman Irby orders them to do so.

According to the best information obtainable the vote of the state will stand about this way:

Cleveland, 70,000; Harrison, 20,000; Weaver from 1,000 to 2,000. These figures may vary but they represent about the voting strength of the parties in this state to-day. Indications all point to the election of five alliance and two democratic congressmen.

WILL KNOW MORE LATER.

A Deluded Republican in Indiana.

Indianapolis, Nov. 7.—In an interview this morning, J. K. Gowdy, chairman of the republican state committee, said: "I am confident we will carry Indiana by from 7,000 to 10,000 plurality. My reason for believing so is that the party is thoroughly organized in every county in the state. We have made a very active and effective school house campaign. The people have been attentive listeners to the discussions in every instance and the masses of the people, regardless of party, are, in my judgment, in favor of protection and honest money and on these issues especially we expect to win. We expect to have a majority of the 13 congressmen.

"We will have a large majority in the lower house of the legislature, with fair prospects of a majority on joint ballot."

EDITOR MEAD,

A Life Time New England Republican,

Will Vote This Fall for Grover Cleveland and Tariff Reform.

oston, Nov. 7.—Edward D. Mead, editor of the New England Magazine, announces his intention of voting for Cleveland. He has hitherto acted with the republicans, but being a believer in a policy that looks to tariff reform, he cannot take the extreme position on the tariff assumed by the republican party.

He will support the republican ticket except that he will vote for Gov. Russell, whose administration he commends.

AWFUL GALES.

The Big Atlantic Ocean Lashed Into a Foam.

London, Nov. 7.—Vessels arriving at Queenstown report that the weather on the Atlantic continues to be very stormy. The gales blow with a fury not often witnessed even at this time of the year, and even the largest steamers are impeded by the mountainous waves.

The Arizona, which left New York, October 29, reports one of the most stormy passages that she has ever encountered. Almost from the day of starting the weather was terrible and the steamer made way only with the greatest difficulty.

On Tuesday last a passenger named Walter Ruby got caught in one of the heavy waves and being unable to resist its fury or catch hold of anything to steady himself, he was swept overboard.

Notwithstanding the storm, the steamer washed overboard, entirely helpless, and the man, but he never came to the surface. The last seen of him was when he was washed overboard, entirely helpless, adn trying to gasp out something he was unable to utter.

The accident caused much gloom among the passengers and they were extremely careful thereafter about getting on deck.

HENRY COUNTY GOSSIP

The Democrats Are Ready for the Battle.

Good Results Will Be Heard From the Fifth.

Interesting Gossip Pleasing to the Many Readers of the Busy Bee.

Napoleon, O., Nov. 7.—(Special)—Democrats hereabouts have been rather slow in decorations, banners, etc., but not without reason. Suffering defeat for so many years, it was a little uphill to feel very sanguine early in the campaign, hence any predictions were slow in coming. But within the past week such uncertainty has disappeared. There is hardly a demmy here but who conscientiously believes that Grover Cleveland is our next president. Since Cleveland's nomination it seemed that no business block in town could fly a banner with any degree of confidence, except one. This was the Democratic Northwest block, which, through rain and shine, unfurled an elegant silk flag with the pendant, "Cleveland and Stevenson" attached. The Northwest, owned and edited by L. L. Orwig, is among the oldest democratic papers of this section. Its democracy is as unswerving as the rock-ribbed hills, and it was through its teachings that the democratic phalanx in Henry county has ever rolled up its heavy vote for the democratic nominees.

Many of our buildings have lately emulated the Northwest structure, and now the city has a holiday appearance. Every window in the court house has therein an elegant lithograph of Grover Cleveland. The reps., the south-hating, fossilized, antiquated, green-spitting reps., object to Grover's honest countenance looking serenely from every window of the elegant building, but their kicks don't count for much up this way. Henry county is one bailiwick where what democras say goes in every instance. If ever our good democrats have felt sanguine they do touching on the success of the democratic ticket next Tuesday.

Will Napoleon Get the Railroad?

This city is all agog considering the prospects of securing the proposed extension of the Wabash railroad from Montpelier to some point on the main line and thereby making connection with Toledo and Chicago. There are many who believe Napoleon will be the favored point. The old bed of the defunct Mansfield & Coldwater road passes through here to a point near Montpelier, and by condemnation proceedings it could be used. The only prospective point that will in any way enter into competition with Napoleon in her efforts to secure the road is Whitehouse. To make the latter place the Wabash would be compelled to construct 10 miles more of road than were Napoleon the connecting town. Our citizens are keen for the road and will do everything consistently within their power to accomplish their desire. While it will not give us a direct north and south or east and west road, it will in a measure answer such purpose, furnishing splendid transportation facilities to Chicago, Detroit and the northwest.

The only reason that the Wabash is somewhat chary of extending the road is Toledo's inability to furnish an eastern outlet, as the Lake Shore and other roads under the Vanderbilt influence would not affiliate, inasmuch as the Wabash would then come in direct competition in all traffic west of Toledo. By the Detroit branch and the Grand Trunk line through Canada the Wabash can secure the outlet desired without reaching Toledo.

INDIANA OIL FIELD.

It Is the Sensation of the Present Day.

St. Marys Is Losing Many of Her Laurels—General Mention.

St. Marys, O., Nov. 7.—(Special)—All eyes are centered upon the Indiana oil field at the present time, by reason of the vast amount of drilling that is being done there and the enormous gushers that are being completed. For a new field it has almost rivalled the St. Marys field, when it was in its palmiest days, and the most sanguine expectations of operators are being fully realized. The daily production of the Indiana field is now placed at 6,000 barrels, which point has been reached within 60 days. The most activity is in the Camden pool. The most phenomenal gusher yet completed in that field was completed a few days ago on the Ninde farm, in Penn township, Jay county. It started out at the rate of 720 barrels per day, and seems to be holding up at that.

H. O. Patch & Co. have finished their No. 2 on the Grissell farm, and is good for 300 barrels.

The Ohio Oil Company's No. 2 on the Graves farm, same township, is completed and good for 225 barrels. No. 3 on the same farm is doing 300 barrels. No. 4 is in the sand. No. 5 and No. 6 are both gas wells of more than the average size. This shows that the field is very treacherous in some places, and a dry hole in close proximity to a gusher is not an improbability here, either.

The Portland Gas and Mining company's No. 2 on the Hidy farm is a roaring gas well. No. 3 on the same farm is good for 300 barrels a day and No. 4 is doing 275 barrels. The same company's No. 1 on the Hyatt farm is good for 125 barrels. No. 2 on the same farm is drilling.

The Manhattan Oil company has completed No. 1 on the Lupton farm. It is a gaser with no oil.

The Elm Peeler Oil company is drilling a well on the Hardy farm, near the big gusher on the Ninde farm.

Tim Spellacy & Co. have succeeded in securing the Meridith farm of 80 acres, south of the Ninde farm. It is a splendid piece of territory and no doubt will be very productive.

The Ohio Oil company's No. 2 on the Straley farm, in Penn township, Jay county, is good for 30 barrels. The same company's No. 1 on the J. Homani farm, same township, is a gas well.

Waldron & Scott's No. 1 on the John Mason farm has declined from 250 to 75 barrels within a few days. No. 2 on the same farm is drilling and No. 3 rig is up.

J. H. Kemp & Co.'s No. 1 on the M. McCollister farm, same section, is doing 125 barrels.

The Ohio Oil company, Indiana division's No. 5, on the McCollister farm, in Jackson township, Jay county, is still doing 50 barrels. No. 6, same farm, is doing 300 barrels. No. 7 is drilling.

The Elm Peeler Oil company's No. 6 on the Whitson farm is good for 100 barrels.

Gibson & Childs' No. 1 on the J. Mason farm is good for only 30 barrels.

The Ohio Oil company's No. 1 on the H. McCollister farm, in Nottingham township, Wells county, is good for 100 barrels. No. 2, same farm, is holding up at 125 barrels. Same company's No. 1 on the George Meckling farm is holding up at 80 barrels.

Williams & Putnam's Nos. 2 and 3, on the John T. Adams farm, are holding up at 50 barrels each.

The Northern Indiana Oil company's No. 4, on the Daniel Hilt farm, has gone down from 180 to 100 barrels. Same company's No. 1 on the Lacy farm is doing 125 barrels. No. 12 is holding up at 50 barrels. No. 3 is good for 125 barrels and No. 4 is drilling.

Breckenridge & Co.'s No. 1 on the Prouty farm is holding up at 60 barrels. Same company is drilling a test well on the Scott farm.

Sproull, Hardison & Co.'s No. 2 on the Martin heirs farm, Hartford township, Adams county, is holding up at 125 barrels. Rig for No. 3 is up on the same farm.

Mitchell & Boyd's No. 3 on the C. D. Porter farm is good for 100 barrels. No. 4, same farm, is drilling.

The Geneva Oil company's No. 2 on the Shoemaker farm, in Hartford township, is good for 100 barrels.

Cora Glick, aged 9, met with a horrible accident at her home near Montra, Shelby county, yesterday by falling onto a chair, the top of which had been broken off. The sharp point entered her body and penetrated her rectum. It is extremely doubtful if she will recover.

There is strong talk of extending the Minster branch of the Lake Erie & Western railroad to Piqua, to connect with the C., H. & D. and Pan Handle, thus giving the city a direct north and south outlet. Walter B. Ritchie, of Lima, was here last week in the interest of Cal Brice, president of the road, and his views are that the extension will be completed next spring.

THE TOLBERT FEUD.

It Has Broken Out Again in Mississippi.

A Sheriff's Posse Makes a Noble Attack With Mixed Results.

Meridian, Miss., Nov. 7.—The notorious Tolbert feud has broken out in Kemper county and as a result three men are lying dead in collins at Fort Stephens, a small town 25 miles north of Meridian.

John Tolbert, the youngest one of the boys, has a Winchester bullet through his heart, while his father, Tom Tolbert, sr., has his neck broken and his body filled with buckshot.

Thomas Cole, a member of the sheriff's posse, has a bullet in his brain, the result of the unerring aim of one of the Tolberts. The story of this family of desperadoes would fill a volume.

Five years ago the family consisted of six, old man Tolbert, and his sons, John, Tom, Jim, Bob and Bill. Led by their father, the gang has been terror to the law-abiding people of the county.

About four years ago, Jim, Bob and Bill Tolbert were killed in a battle with a sheriff's posse. The remainder of the gang escaped into the dense swamps of Oktibbeha river, where they remained in hiding until three years ago, when they became more bold and renewed their career of outlawry.

Saturday night the sheriff and his posse attacked Tolbert's house, being armed with Winchesters. The battle was waged fiercely for two hours, when the Tolbert's ammunition became exhausted and he was forced to surrender.

The posse then started on its way back to Fort Stephens, but was met by a mob composed of a thousand farmers, who overpowered the guard and strung the old man up to a tree. Young Tom escaped form his father's house and took refuge at the farm of a relative five miles distant.

When his whereabout became known yesterday morning, a mob of 1,500 men left for the scene for the purpose of lynching Tolbert and all his relations. Nothing has been heard from the mob since they left Fort Stephens but news of a battle is expected as the mob will no doubt meet with a desperate resistance.

Fort Stephens is twenty-five miles from a railroad station and the only means of communication with Meridian is by courier. The last messenger left the scene at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

STRUCK BY A TRAIN.

A Woman's Terrible Form of Suicide.

She Stands on the Track and Calmly Awaits Death to Reach Her.

Chattanooga, Tenn., Nov. 7.—A woman was killed yesterday morning by an incoming passenger train on the Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis railroad under circumstances which seem to indicate a most dreadful form of suicide.

As the train came in at a 30-mile an hour rate the woman walked upon the track, and paying no attention to the warning whistle stood still until she was struck by the pilot. The blow threw her over a mile post, a distance of 35 feet.

Her neck, back, shoulder and several ribs were broken, and several minor injuries inflicted.

In her hand she had a bunch of chrysanthemums which she clasped in her death grip.

She was apparently 50 years of age and was poorly clad.

The coroner's jury exonerated the railroad from blame.

SCHOONER WRECKED.

Mays Landing, N. J., Nov. 7.—Word has been received here of the wreck of the schooner Annie S. Gaskill, of this place, outside the Delaware capes. A cutter found her on beam end and her crew clinging to her. A boat was lowered and the sailors rescued. The men were nearly frozen stiff. They were landed at Lewis, Del. The Gaskill was bound for Norfolk with ties. Heavy seas caused her to roll until she sprung a leak.

A FAST MILE.

San Francisco, Nov. 7.—At Santa Ana Saturday the fastest mile ever paced west of the Mississippi was made by Silkwood, the California stallion, who covered it in 2:08 3-4. His sire is Blackwood Mambrino, dam Lucy Woodruff.

C. J. REA DEAD.

Mrs. Edward Myers.

Torturing Erysipelas.

ONE OF THE WORST CASES EVER REPORTED.

Mrs. Myers' Hand Amputated. Her Life Saved.

The case of Mrs. Edward Myers, of Athens, N. Y., furnishes an apt illustration of a woman's power of endurance. This lady had been treated for months in the usual way for Erysipelas of the hand, without benefit. Not until her hand had become a mass of putrified flesh, and her life despaired of, did she turn to Dr. Kennedy, proprietor of FAVORITE REMEDY, for help.

He at once informed her that he could save her life, but that it was impossible to save the hand—it must be amputated.

SAVED She received this terrible intelligence quietly, declined to take ether, stipulating merely to hold her husband's hand during the operation, and underwent the painful process without moving a muscle or uttering a groan.

Dr. Kennedy then gave Favorite

HER Remedy, which drove the poisonous disease out of her system, cleansed the blood, and prevented the return of the disease, and she now lives and rejoices in her great deliverance.

Had Dr. Kennedy been called at any previous stage of the disease he would have at once prescribed Favorite Remedy and LIFE Mrs. Myers would not have had to undergo this terrible ordeal, as it would have saved her hand.

Are you reader, troubled with Erysipelas or any eruption of the skin, it may be Erysipelas in its incipient stage—don't trifle with it a moment, but use Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, it will cure you, for it is

DEATH TO ERYSIPELAS.

BAD BERT JONES.

He Makes a Confession to the Detectives,

And Tells of How He Bobbed Those Who Befriended Him—He Will Be Taken to Michigan.

Bert Jones, who was arrested several days since for horse stealing, made a confession this morning to the detectives. In substance it was as follows:

He was born at Genoa, O., in 1867, and came to Toledo and lived here until 1888, when he stole a horse and was sent to the penitentiary for three years. He served 22 months, and on leaving the prison went straight to Ann Arbor, where he was not long in getting at his old work. He turned burglar, did three jobs, and got one year in Jackson prison in consequence. Once more free he came to Toledo, and then went to work on a farm in Bedford township. He got the run of the country thereabouts, and then stole a mare and used her to go out nights stealing in the surrounding farms. One night the mare got untied and strayed away. He went back and stole another one from the same place, came to Toledo and stole a wagon from Yeager's on Dorr street and started out on a thieving tour in good style. Jones on the trip stole 24 bushels of wheat from Mr. Dunbar, of Bedford township, 12 bushels of wheat from the Ketcham farm, 9 bushels of buckwheat of Mr. Grade, of Bedford, 20 bushels of wheat from a man on Broadway, a buggy from Mr. Conrad, of Oregon township, leaving the old buggy. The harness was a little worn, so he stole a new one from the township clerk, Mr. Todd. Then he stole 75 bushels of wheat from Mr. Upton, the same man whose horse he stole four years previous. He then proceeded to the barn of George Jackman and stole three blankets. He went to the farm of Mr. Whetmore, the man who had taken care of him when he was sick, and showed his appreciation of the kindness by stealing three robes and a blanket. He did a good many more bad things, and now sits repenting behind the bars in the city prison. He will be taken to Michigan for trial, and will without doubt go to the penitentiary.

BRUTAL ASSAULT.

Terrible Affair Reported From Indianapolis.

Indianapolis, Nov. 7.—About 4 o'clock yesterday morning Miss Dr. Hays, a prominent young physician in the northwest part of town, living at 501 North West street, was aroused by a man who urged her to go with him at once to attend his wife, who was very ill.

The man offered to wait and accompany the doctor and, after hesitation, she consented and they started for the man's home. When at the mouth of an alley, leading from Tennessee street, the man suddenly grabbed Miss Hays and dragged her into the alley.

He was on the point of assaulting her when her screams brought assistance and the man was frightened away, but not before Miss Hays was choked almost into insensibility.

William Cocheral, a carpenter, was last night arrested by Detective Thornton and was afterwards identified by Dr. Hays. Cocheral denies the charge.

ALL SOULS' DAY.

Cincinnati Catholics Turn Out by Thousands.

Cincinnati, Nov. 7.—Twelve thousand persons kneeling at the graves of their dear departed in earnest prayer, with clasped hands and faces uplifted hopefully towalrd heaven.

This awe-inspiring scene was enacted at the old German St. Joseph's Catholic cemetery on Price Hill yesterday.

At the new St. Joseph's Catholic cemetery, further out on Price Hill, 5,000 more mourners were assembled.

Also at Calvary Catholic seminary, on Walnut Hills, and at St. Mary's Catholic seminary, at St. Bernard, were over 10,000 mourners kneeling in prayer at the graves.

Altogether 25,000 people visited the Catholic cemeteries of this city yesterday. The occasion was the celebration of All Souls' day, which occurred last Wednesday. It is devoted to the dead and observed by prayers for release of souls from purgatory.

FIRST ANNIVERSARY

Of the Political Equality Club.

The pleasant parlors of Mrs. E. Quigley were well filled Saturday afternoon with the members and friends of the Political Equality club, the occasion being the club's first birthday.

Any one could easily see that the affair was no ordinary one.

The blinds had been drawn and the gas lighted, and its mellow radiance shone on a picture delightful to the artistic eye.

The decorations were of the suffrage color—bright yellow—and the draperies, floral designs, etc., were all of this golden hue.

Mrs. Quigley was assisted in receiving by the president of the club, Mrs. Murphy, and the secretary, Mrs. Beeley.

The meeting was called to order at 4:30, and the president, after reviewing the work of the year, which has been both pleasant and profitable, and speaking of the club's rapidly increasing membership, announced that it had been decided to discuss for a short time the subject that is agitating the public mind at present, that is, "Corporal Punishment."

The question was taken up with animation and discussed at some length, considerable feeling being manifested on both sides.

At the close of the debate, a vote was taken, resulting in favor of the use of the rod, by a majority of one.

It was not the original intention to transact any business at this meeting, but so large a number of the members being present, it was decided to have the election of officers, which resulted as follows: President, Mrs. Claude Q. Murphy; vice-president, Miss Katharine Calkins; secretary, Mrs. Fannie Beeley; treasurer, Mrs. Susan I. Moore.

The trustees will be elected at the next meeting, which will be held with Miss Calkins, 830 West Washington street, between Lawrence avenue and Ewing street.

After the business session, dainty and delicious refreshments were served on rare sevres, 100 years old.

The reception was perfect in all its appointments, and the hostess was tendered hearty thanks for the delightful entertainment.

A CORRECTION.

Messrs. Warn and Spear Are Still in San Francisco.

The Bee has no disposition to injure the innocent or strike a man when he is down. Unintentionally an item slipped into Friday's issue which might be interpreted to mean such.

Unsolicited and very willingly, therefore, the Bee publishes this statement in connection with the following self-explanatory letter:

To the Editor: In your issue of yesterday you published the following article:

"Warn and Spear.—Alleged to have left San Francisco under a cloud.

"News comes from San Francisco that Warn and Spear, formerly of this city, and whose escapades here are familiar to all, have gotten themselves into further trouble, and hav eleft the Golden Gate under somewhat of a cloud. The particulars are not forthcoming."

I wish to say I know th's report to be false, and will vouch for its being so under my own signature, as I have telegram and letter to corroborate. Mr. Warn is in San Francisco, is paying his debts as fast as possible, and the report you have published is absolutely false in every part cular.

Pittsburg, Nov. 7.—Fred and F. P. A. Mollinger, heirs of the late Father Mollinger, say they are going to sell the relics owned by their uncle. The members of the church claim the property, as do the heirs, and the matter will probably be referred to the courts.

STORM AT MANITOBA.

GOSSIP FROM THE OUTSIDE PRESS.

More Ingenuity Than Judgment.

Friends of the president in Washington "figure out his election without New York." Such figuring is vastly more ingenious than hopeful.—N. Y. World.

All for the Workingman.

Henry C. Frick's contribution of $100,000 to the republican campaign fund was, of course, made in the interests of the American workingman.—Rochester Herald.

Of Course They Do.

When Wayne MacVeagh spoke in New Haven, 22 Yale professors were on the platform. Of course the republican party still claims all the virtue and intelligence of the country.—Rochester Herald.

A Matter of Bargain and Sale.

A cabinet officer thinks that New York will give Harrison a larger majority than it gave him four years ago. But the Tribune is authority for the statement that the majority was not given at all—but sold.—Philadelphia Record.

Has Found His Level.

Why should he (Brick Pomeroy) not flop? Why should he not be a republican now? The party run by Quay, Wanamaker, Dudley, Clarkson, Dave Martin and that layout is no more the party of Lincoln, Seward, Andrew Greeley, Chase and Henry Winter Davis than Pomeroy is like Grover Cleveland or John G. Carlisle. Pomeroy has found his home at last.—Louisville Times.

Republican Bushwhacking.

West Virginia must be carried for Harrison or else Mr. Cleveland will be elected, says Secretary of War Steve Elkins. He says also, "I must be elected to the United States senate. Ohio county sends four delegates to the legislature. Some of them must be elected to stay at home—no matter how it's done." Democrats what think you of this bushwhacking business, anyhow?—Wheeling Register.

Falsehood Will Not Elect Benny.

The republicans are keeping up their courage by inventing and circulating false reports, but occasionally they carry the thing too far. One wrote a letter from Bartholomew county, Ind., declaring that the ex-soldiers of that section were solid for Harrison and Reid. The answer to this was an open letter signed by more than 200 union veterans of the county, saying that they should vote for Cleveland and giving good reasons for their determination.—N. Y. World.

The Wild Cat Silver Candidate.

It is reported from Denver that there will be circulated as a campaign document throughout Colorado this week an autograph letter from President Harrison pledging himself, in the event of his re-election, to approve a bill for the unlimited coinage of silver. The circulation of such a letter seems to be unnecessary. Senator Teller, of that state, has already assured the voters that the president would not veto such a bill if it should be presented to him, and upon this assurance the free silver republicans have largely abandoned Weaver and have returned to the support of Harrison. Mr. Harrison is the wild-cat silver candidate this year. —Chicago Herald.

Pious John's Esteemed Friend.

Mr. Frick does not come east very often; it is long since his ill-omened presence had been detected here in this city. The Carnegie firm are know to be great beneficiaries under the McKinley tariff. In an interview on Tuesday Mr. Wanamaker, the postmaster general of the United States, proudly declared that Mr. Frick was his "esteemed friend." An esteemed friend, who is a millionaire, is likely to be suspected very strongly of rendering financial assistance in a campaign in which he is interested, and Mr. Frick's journeyings at this time must be presumed to have a decidedly partisan and monetary significance.

It will take more than a denial from the republican committeemen to convince the public mind to the contrary. Their desperation must have made them mad, or they never would have allowed him to come at all.—New York News.

Principle vs Money.

The democrats will carry the country, if they do carry it, because their position is overwhelmingly popular. But if Mr. Harrison is elected it will simply show that the support of the manufacturers and the consequent possession of a large campaign fund has won the day. Democratic victory will not prove that Mr. Cleveland is a better or a purer man than Mr. Harrison, nor will republican victory prove the reverse.

An election like the present one is a question of dynamics. If Mr. Cleveland and his generals have chosen a position in the strategic struggle that will command a popular strength more than equal to the power of the republican combination of wealth and corporate influence he will win; but if he loses, the very men who are managing his political affairs will blame him for selecting a fighting ground that cut them off from the necessary cash.—N. Y. Herald.

TRUSTEES' MEETING.

Day Nursery Company Reviews the Month's Work.

Saturday afternoon the trustees of the Day Nursery company met at the nursery rooms on Oak street, and received reports of officers as to the work of the past month, which showed that 23 individual children had received 245 days' care.

The entertainment committee will meet with Mrs. S. A. Trowbridge, 318 Columbia street, next Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock.

Arrangements will be furthered for the charity ball, to be held on the evening of November 22, at Pythian castle.

A number of boxes will be placed in different parts of the city, where people charitably disposed can drop in a nickel occasionally.

The next meeting will be held Saturday afternoon, November 12.

Catarrh, Heart Failure, Paralysis of the Throat

"I Thank God and Hood's Sarsaparilla for Perfect Health."

"Gentlemen: For the benefit of suffering humanity I wish to state a few facts: For several years I have suffered from catarrh and heart failure, getting so bad I could not work and

Could Scarcely Walk

I had a very bad spell of paralysis of the throat some time ago. My throat seemed closed and I could not swallow. The doctors said it was caused by heart failure, and gave medicine, which I took according to directions, but it did not seem to do me any good. My wife urged me to try Hood's Sarsaparilla, telling me of Mr. Joseph C. Smith, who had been

At Death's Door

but was entirely cured by Hood's Sarsaparilla. After talking with Mr. Smith, I concluded to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. When I had taken two bottles I felt very much better. I have continued taking it, and am now feeling excellent. I thank God, and

Hood's Sarsaparilla

and my wife for my restoration to perfect health." HARVEY HEED, Laceyville, O.

CONSUME THE SMOKE.

Meeting To Be Held—List of Queries.

A week from to-morrow evening a meeting of manufacturers will be held at the office of the Woolson Spice company to take some action on the question of abating the smoke nuisance.

The following self-explanatory circular letter has been sent out by the Woolson Spice company:

Toledo, Ohio, Nov. 5, 1892.

The city council of Toledo having recently enacted an ordinance requiring users of soft coal under steam boilers to employ some effective device for consuming smoke, and in view of the imperfect state of the art in this matter, and of the unsuccessful experience of other cities in this direction, some concerted action among interested parties in our city is deemed advisable, and you are urgently requested to attend a meeting, having this object in view, to b eheld at the office of the Woolson Spice company, November 15, at 7:45 o'clock p. m.

1. Has your city an ordinance requiring the use of smoke consumers? If so, when was same passed?

2. Has such ordinance been enforced and to what extent?

3. Give names of successful devices tested in your city with manufacturers' name, also are such devices acceptable to city authorities?

4. What per cent. if any of smoke is required to be consumed by ordinance, and what per cent. of consumption is accomplished by the most successful devices?

5. Is the application of smoke consuming device attended by any increased cost in fuel, if so, what per cent. increase?

6. What effect, if any, does smoke consumer have upon boilers?

7. State what kind of boilers are best adapted to the application of smoke consumers?

Please answer the above questions and return this to

A New Departure.

Rev. Dr. Schreiber, the new rabbi of the Tenth Street Jewish temple, has introduced a new departure in church services, in the Sabbath evening service, at which there are appropriate musical numbers and a sermon.

Dr. Schreiber is greatly interested in the young people of his congregation, and will make an effort to interest them in church work.

He opened the new club last evening with an address that evidenced his interest in young men and women and their pleasures.

IMMENSE POPULAR MAJORITY.

The Entire Public Aroused.

Never in the history of America has anything like it been witnessed. Of all its rivals the genuine Johann Hoff's Malt Extract leads. It has been on the market for 40 years, and is on top to-day. The genuine Johann Hoff's Malt Extract has been improved with the advancement of science, and is the best nutritive-tonic extant. In convalescence, for dyspepsia and faulty nutrition, it is without equal. Seventy-six highest awards from exhibitions and scientific societies attest to its superior merit. No wonder that numerous imitations, under the name of "Hoff" and other labels, seek to profit by the reputation and world-wide fame of the genuine article. Beware of them. The genuine must have the signature of "Johann Hoff" on the neck label of every bottle. Refuse all worthless imitations.

On November 7, 1811, Gen. William Henry Harrison defeated the Indians at Tippecanoe, now Lafayette, Indiana. The Shawnees were commanded by Tecumseh's brother, "The Prophet," and shortly after midnight crept upon the sleeping camp. Harrison lost 62 killed, and 126 wounded from his force of 650 men, before the savages were repulsed. The Indians were driven off after they had suffered a loss of 150 killed.

CITY GAS.

Hopes of the Board in the Pump.

Manager Heston, of the city gas line, was buzzed this morning by a Bee. Asked about the pump he said:

"The pump arrived last Friday and is being set to-day. They are crowding matters as fast as they can."

Asked if he had any other news his reply was: "There were 760 flags used in decorating Warren street school on Columbus day."

"Any new connections made in the city?" was the next inquiry.

"We are making no connections for anybody unless they paid for gas last year," said Mr. Heston.

"Are there any cutting off?"

"Oh, there will be a few changes, but that's more than offset by those that are coming on. All these," showing a bundle of papers, "represent applications for gas."

"But you are not making any connections. When will these people be put on the line?"

"That's to be determined after we see what the pumps will develop. We must have more pressure before we take any more consumers."

The Toledo Medical college has received a certificate of membership in the Association of American Medical colleges, for which it made application a short time since. The association comprises the membership of all the principal medical schools of national reputation. There is an advantage in having a membership in many ways. Diplomas issued from the Toledo Medical college will be honored by any other college just as though they had been issued by themselves. This has given renewed vigor to the physicians and students of the Toledo Medical college, who are confident that the benefit will be a great one.

Tried His Own Case.

L. E. House, a colored man, the editor of a number of papers, among them the Afro-American, was tried in police court this morning. Billy Boone charged him with knocking him down and robbing him.

House acted as his own attorney, and conducted his case in good shape. The court discharged him. Some of the testimony was very funny.

Such questions as "Didn't I call at yo' house with er watermelon that night?" and "Didn't Billy say he can carve my liver?" convulsed the court room. It was as good as a circus.

New Buildings Needed.

A three-cornered brick building of two stories is roofed in on the corner of Washington and Illinois streets. Another two-story brick structure is being built on the west and north side of Fred Stephens' pharmacy, corner Tenth and Washington streets; and still another is being finished on Washington street, opposite Fourteenth street.

In regard to the number of new business buildings going up in different parts of the city, one man suggested that it possibly meant the vacation of older quarters; but he to whom the remark was made declared, and have instances of the spread of business to such an extent that not only were the new buildings necessary, but that the old ones would continue to be occupied.

Hocking Valley Earnings.

The earnings of the Columbus, Hocking Valley & Toledo for October were $315,306, a decrease as compared with the same month in 1891 of $23,775. With such a showing it is not to be wondered that the Hocking Valley has given notice of withdrawal from the Ohio Coal Traffic association. The general business of the company has increased largely and the falling off in earnings does not show really to what extent the coal traffic has been affected. President Waite is not in favor of a pool that does not protect all the roads in it. On the pretense of maintaining rates the pool has been kept up, however, while the Hocking Valley's competitors were secredly cutting rates and taking the business. There has been some talk of an open fight, but from all indications the Hocking Valley will be able to stay in it as long as any of its competitors.—Columbus State Journal.

AT REST.

Funeral Service and Burial of the Late J. D. Leland.

The last sad rites attending the funeral service and burial of Mr. J. D. Leland were observed yesterday at his late residence in the presence of a large assemblage of sorrowing relatives and friends.

The funeral oration was delivered by the deceased gentleman's pastor, Rev. H. M. Bacon, and the interment took place at Woodlawn cemetery, the Knights of Honor, of which order Mr. Leland was a member, conducting a beautiful ceremony at the grave.

The death of so prominent and esteemed a citizen as Mr. Leland, leaves a vacancy in business and social circles that will not soon be filled.

The sincere sympathy of a sorrowing people goes out to the immediate family on whom the blow falls heaviest.

WEAR AN OVERCOAT.

Democratic Weather in New York To-Morrow.

Weather Observer Hanner said to a Bee this morning: "The storm central on Saturday over the extreme northwest moved eastward, and is now central over Lake Superior. It snowed over the northern half of that region in the last 24 hours. It is due to arrive to-day and to-morrow over the country east of the Mississippi, followed by an area of clearing conditions. There will be strong westerly gales over the lakes to-night, and storm signals are displayed at all lake stations. The cold weather has reached from North Dakota to Texas, and it promises to be colder during Tuesday and Wednesday.

"This morning there is snow in Iowa, Minnesota and Wisconsin. As the weather begins to grow colder the light rains will turn to light snow, and I wouldn't be surprised if we had the thermometer here as low as 15 degrees by Wednesday morning.

"The rainfall here this morning was two hundredths of an inch. It has been quite general, but light everywhere except on the gulf coast, Galveston having over an inch. I wouldn't be surprised if that place got a norther.

"The weather in New York and New England to-morrow will probably be very nasty—cold and rainy. Over this portion of the country it will be generally fair, with possibly light flurries of snow, and much colder. It seems to be clearing much more rapidly than after the storm of the other day."

BOARD OF ELECTIONS.

Busy With Final Preparations for Election.

The board of elections was in session all morning correcting errors in the registration of the regular days and giving orders to those who were unable to register on those days on account of being out of the city or incapacitated. The board occupied a room across the hall from its office, and there was quite a stream of applicants for orders. Up to noon there had been given out, including Friday and Saturday, about 125 orders for registration, then the board adjourned till 2 o'clock. During the recess a number came in wanting orders, and were told to return at 2 o'clock. Some of the applicants acknowledged that they were in the city, and could have registered had they not been careless about it. Such were refused orders.

The registrars are at the booths in the proper precincts this afternoon—from 3 to 6 o'clock—making entries of the names of those who received orders from the board.

The clerks of the board were busy today giving out supplies to the officers of election in the city and country, and making the final preparations for the work at the voting places to-morrow.

One amusing episode at the board rooms to-day was the application of a man for information in regard to railway tickets for two of his friends to be sent into the country to vote. A Bee caught on and asked what ticket his friends voted, and when the man replied republican, told him the place he wanted to find was the republican headquarters. A clerk in the room informed him sententiously that the election board was non-partisan. The confused applicant stated that he had seen Mr. Wiltsee, who told him to come to his office; but he hadn't much time, and wanted to get through at the noon hour. He didn't care much, but wanted to know about those tickets.

IN CIRCUIT COURT.

The Park Commissioners and the Ashleys

Come Together Over Lower Summit Street Property.

The Course of James M. Ashley in Keeping With His Record on All Other Matters.

A lie.

A miserable, despicable falsehood.

This is what the honest campaign made by Byron Ritchie has driven James M. Ashley to.

That public-spirited citizen who opposes public improvements and then prevaricates about it.

By this lie he endeavors to dupe the public into believing that he is willing to sell his Summit street property to the park board for the same price that was paid to the Pennsylvania railroad company.

If this statement, made to the public in a letter published in Saturday's Bee, over James M. Ashley's signature, was in good faith, why is Harry Ashley and his attorney, A. L. Smith, fighting for an injunction in circuit court to-day to restrain the park commissioners from appropriating the property, regardless of the offer of the same price as was paid the Pennsylvania company?

The Park board offered to-day to accept the terms of Mr. Ashley's letter.

Why does he not live up to his agreement given over his own signature?

Because he knows he was not sincere when h ewrote the letter.

Because he knows, and as his son, Big Jim, stated under oath in circuit court this morning, that the letter was written for political purposes.

Because he shrinks from judgment to be passed to-morrow, by a people who have learned of his perfidy and hypocrisy.

He feared to face the honest indignation of the citizens of Toledo, and by publishing what was purported to be the honest statement of an honest man, sought to ward off judgment until after election.

His despicable treachery was exposed in open court this morning, and by his own son.

It was a false statement as the records of the park board will show.

It was false as the testimony taken this morning in the case of the Toledo & Ann Arbor railway company against the park commissioners will show.

The plaintiff applied for an injunction in common pleas, to restrain the park board from appropriating property on Summit street, 200 feet frontage, on the ground that the railroad company owns no terminal property in Toledo; that it rents of the Pennsylvania company and may be ejected at any time that notice had been served; that the same agreement would soon be terminated. The plaintiff claims, that if they are compelled to sell this property they will be deprived of any possible facility by which the company can transact its business at this, its terminal point.

Mr. Alexander Smith, attorney for the railroad company, in his statement to the court, said that at the time the park board passed resolutions to appropriate the property the officers of the company were planning to use the same for terminal facilities.

Upon learning of the intention of the board to appropriate the property, engineers were directed to figure on another entrance into the city. It was proposed to build tracks into the city air line from Manhattan road to Lagrange street.

Nothing, however, was said of Gov. Ashley's letter published in the Bee, that he was willing to sell the property for the same as was paid to the Pennsylvania railroad company.

That letter read very smoothly, just like Jim. Anything to avert attention from the truth.

Mr. Smith, as Mr. Ashley's attorney, in this same statement to the court, did not say anything about submitting the difference to arbitration.

He did not say that Mr. Ashley had directed him to say to the court that they would take as much as had been paid the Pennsylvania Railroad company.

Mr. Ashely, in his letter says it was thought best to seek an injunction, to place a block to stay the progress of public improvement, until this public-spirited James M. Ashley could dispose of his master stroke (transfer boats).

Why did he not speak the truth and say that he wanted to delay matters until after election, at which time he would show his teeth?

Mr. E. D. Potter, jr., and Mr. Guy Kinney, representing the park board, stood ready to pay the Ann Arbor railroad company the same price as was paid to the Pennsylvania. Also that a member of the park board had received a letter, the same as printed in the Bee Saturday.

Manager Harry Ashley was present and requested permission to look at the letter. It was handed to him, and without opening the envelope threw it down upon the table with the remark, "It's no use for me to look at it. I know who sent it. It is not father's signature."

"Who did sign it?" queried Mr. Kinney.

"My brother Jim. There is too much politics in that for this case."

The statement of defense as made by Mr. Smith in court differs from Hon. James M. Ashley's letter.

James Ashley, jr., was called into court and sworn. "I hand you a communication addressed to E. D. Potter, signed by James M. Ashley. Who wrote it?"

"I wrote the letter under his dictation; that is, he told me what to write and I signed his name."

"What was the object of this letter?"

"Response to a political communication in the Evening Bee, signed by E. D. Potter.

"What connection do you have with the T., A. A. & N. M. Railroad company?"

"I am vice-president."

"Does this letter meet with your approval?"

"It does."

"And does the company stand ready to carry out the terms of the communication?"

"It does; yes, sir."

Harry Ashley—"Do you know anything about the negotiation in this case?"

Mr. Smith—"Who has the general supervision and business management of the affairs of the road?"

Jim—"Harry runs the political end of the ax, but he was out of the city."

"Harry runs the political end of the ax," and how well he runs it a great many employes could tell if they dared to speak.

If James M. Ashley was sincere in his statement made in that letter why, when he received the following from E. D. Potter, jr., of the board, in response to his note, stop further proceedings in court:

Nov. 5, 1892.

Hon. J. M. Ashley, Toledo, O.

My Dear Sir: I am just in receipt of yours of the 4th inst. There will be a meeting of the park board this p. m. at 4:30 o'clock at its rooms in the Nasby and would be glad if you could be present at the meeting. Possibly some arrangement might be agreed upon that would be satisfactory to both parties.

I am satisfied the park commissioners are willing to pay the Ann Arbor company on the same basis, substantially, as paid by the board to the Pennsylvania company for similar property. I think the board would be willing to meet you half way in the matter, and still you would retain the bulk of your property for terminal if you so desired.

Very truly,
E. D. POTTER, Jr.

Ashley was not in earnest, and is fighting the parks with all the power of his wealth.

A. P. A.—ATTENTION.

LYING AND SCURRILOUS CIRCULAR.

Recognizing that defeat stares them in the face, republican managers are now resorting to all kinds of devices and schemes to divide the democratic vote.

The latest dodge is to send out a document proclaiming that twelve years ago Byron Ritchie opposed Mr. Hurd.

Every Toledoan knows that Byron father, Judge Ritchie, ran against Mr. Hurd, and that Byron had nothing to do with the race.

Byron Ritchie is known to the democracy as a true-blue democrat, and the lying and scurrilous circular will have no effect.

Mr. Hurd emphatically repudiates any statement that Mr. Ritchie ever opposed him. On the contrary, he has always been among his warmest supporters.

Vote for Byron Ritchie and condemn such a nefarious attempt at deception.

BROUGHT UP SHORT.

Sixteen Toledo Lads, Known As Jack the Ripper Gang.

They Have Been Systematically Stealing for Some Time—F. R. Frey & Co.'s Robbed Yesterday.

The dime novel is getting in its work in Toledo in great shape of late. Several well-organized gangs of boy thieves have been broken up, but the crowd hauled up this morning by the police lays over anything that has come to light in recent days.

Sixteen boys were arrested as follows: Frank Biosset, Harry Biosset, Jacob Kohn, John Kohn, Joseph Kohn, Fred Eckhart, Joseph Lalond, Bruno Lalond, Walter Hazelwood, Artie Hazelwood, Jepry Buck, E. Magnus, Burt Magnus, Isadore Sherman and Jacob Volk. Their ages range from 9 to 15 years.

The gang was well organized and went by the name of Jack the Ripper Gang. They have been doing considerable small thieving. Three or four would go into a store and while one purchased a few things the others filled their pockets. The stuff they have been stealing was found all over the city, under sidewalks, in lumber yards, and in the cellars of their respective houses.

Their last job was to break in the rear of F. R. Frey & Co.'s store on Monroe street about 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon. They took everything they could lay their hands on—false faces, soap, dolls, novels, papers, candles, statuettes, and no end of knick-knacks.

The youthful burglars were made to confess where most of the plunder was hidden.

Their case will come up in police court Wednesday morning.

THE GILL CASE

Arguments Have Been Concluded

And the Fate of the Sixth Ward Councilman Is Now in the Hands of the Jury of Twelve.

When the Bee went to press Saturday Prosecutor Barber had finished the opening argument for the state and Judge Ritchie was engaged in the opening argument for the defense. He closed at 3:30, after which court adjourned until 9 o'clock this morning.

Mr. Wright then closed for the defense. He was followed by Mr. Tracy, who closed the argument. The court then charged the jury and the members retired for deliberation at 3:15.

THE BOWER MATTER.

Impeachment Papers Signed and Filed in Probate Court.

Impeachment proceeding have been established against Street Commissioner Bower.

The necessary papers were filed in probate court this morning by City Solicitor Reid.

The charges are embraced in an affidavit based upon the irregularities, as reported by the board of revision, after a thorough investigation of the affairs of the street commissioner's office.

The affidavit bears the signatures of Charles Ephart, W. L. Babcock, John Englehardt, William F. Schlutz and Henry F. Kamper.

From this day, the law requires that hearing of the case be commenced within 30 days.

The court will require a bond, and after this has been fixed the accused is served with a copy of the affidavit giving notice of 10 days for appearance.

Then, if a jury be demanded, the panel is struck in the usual manner, to be returned in 10 days. After this the accused can claim a continuance of 10 days, upon filing an affidavit setting forth reasonable grounds therefore.

THE BLADE ON ASHLEY.

"It is said that Mr. Ashley demurrer to the charge (defrauding the City and County) will be non-residence in Ohio, he spending most of his time in New York City."—Blade, May 27, 1891.

TO AGENTS.

Interest will center all of this week in the election returns. The Bee has arranged for the fullest details. In order that the demand for papers may be supplied, orders for extra copies should reach the business department by Monday, or early on Tuesday.

Agents, send in your orders at once.

THE BEE'S ELECTION RETURNS

The Bee, always ready to cater to the wants of the people, has perfected arrangements to display the election returns on Tuesday evening, with the aid of a stereopticon, in front of the office. The news will be received in the building over the Bee's wires, and the information given immediately.

Every Toledoan is interested in the election, and recognizing this fact, all possible diligence will be used to accommodate and give reliable returns.

Get out the democratic vote.

Grandfather's hat will be empty after Tuesday.

Jake Kohn would be a splendid recorder. Vote for him.

Even bets were made on Ritchie Saturday and to-day.

Give the democratic county ticket a rousing majority.

Watch the republican ward workers; they need watching.

The Hat and Rat ticket is doomed to overwhelming defeat.

The wild-cat bank cry was pretty weak. It had no foundation.

Ashley's taxpaying record is like the rest of it—very unsavory.

Vote early in the morning, and take along your democratic neighbor.

Byron Ritchie is a man from the ranks of the people. Send him to congress.

Grover Cleveland will be our next president. This statement will do to bank on.

Send in your contribution to the democratic campaign committee; it is not too late.

W. G. Root is better qualified for county surveyor than his opponent. Vote for Root.

The prohibitionists expect a good vote in Lucas county. Will they be disappointed?

Be of good cheer, democrats. Get out the vote and the jollification will follow as a result.

Hamilton's address Saturday night should help elect Ashley, if such a thing was possible.

Workingmen, do your duty to-morrow. Knock out blacklisting and boycotting by defeating Ashley.

Republican newspapers in unison: Voters, all we say is the truth; only democratic papers circulate lies.

Ashley stands for all that is mean, low and despicable in American politics. Defeat the demagogue.

Councilman Wylie is pleasing to the ear. Vote for the popular young business man in the Second ward.

The Bee invites the people of Toledo to read its bulletins on Tuesday night. They will not be colored.

How many times did J. Kent Hamilton mention Ashley's name in his Memorial hall speech? 'Steen times.

Vote for Cleveland, Byron Ritchie and reform in Bill McKinley's bill. That is the only way to reach results.

Cast a full and straight democratic vote for Byron Ritchie, and the anti-Ashley republicans will do the rest.

Joseph Gates' qualifications for infirmary director are just such as are required in the position. Vote for him.

Knock out Moxieism in the Second ward by voting for J. H. Wylie, the democratic nominee for councilman.

In politics the demagogue is what the shyster and trickster is in business and social life. Defeat the demagogue.

State Commissioner of Railroads Kirkby, speaking for the railroad men of Toledo, is enough to make a horse laugh.

L. C. Gibbs has shown himself competent to make a first-class county commissioner. Elect him for another term.

That was a glorious sight—Hamilton and Griffin expressing pleasure addressing the Ashley meeting Saturday night.

The local republican committee scored another fizzle Saturday night. Fates are against the "grand old party" this year.

There will be anxiety in the federal building until the votes are counted, after which the officials will be grief-stricken indeed.

Ashley's greatness was used as a lever in the campaign two years ago, but did not exert much force. Nor will it to-morrow.

Col. W. I. Squire has had considerable difficulty in marshalling his torchlight forces. Their enthusiasm has been at a very low ebb.

That was rather a demonstrative interview on Mr. Ashley's record as a Cleveland voter, given by City Clerk Lamb in Saturday's Bee.

Governor McKinley has made 58 speeches in this campaign, and traveled 4,500 miles. Not bad for a public official on a fat salary.

Jim Ashley is in favor of parks in lower town if he is paid exorbitant prices for the property in his control. He's a great public benefactor.

Take another look at Ashley's achievements for Toledo's harbor when in congress. The table will be found interesting for comparison.

Republican county and city officials will be happy when the election is over. They have been almost bled to death by Jim Southard's fat-fryers.

Byron Ritchie addresses the people of Perrysburg this evening. Mr. Ritchie has made a splendid canvass, which cannot fail to produce good results.

Chairman Dick thinks that the republican ticket will pull through in Ohio. Possible, but not probable in the present unsettled condition of things.

Wickham will not have more than 400 majority in Huron county for circuit judge. From all accounts, he is not deserving of even these figures.

Newspapers will begin to talk about President Cleveland after to-morrow, fixing up his cabinet and gossiping on the members of his official family.

All indications point to a sweeping democratic victory. Lucas county democrats should rise to the occasion and help swell the general majority.

Do the taxpayers of the Second desire State street paved for Mr. Jacobson's sole benefit? If so, vote for Mr. Jacobson. If not, vote for Mr. Wylie.

There need be no surprise felt should Pennsylvania cast its electoral vote for Cleveland. The iron barons of the Keystone state have lost their grip.

Democrats are very generally showing faith in the election of Cleveland by investing their cash taking republican bets, giving odds for the opportunity.

Gus Wendt is having a rather lively racket on his hands in the closing days of the canvass. Vote for Jake Kohn, as most of the soldier veterans propose doing.

The man who attempts to defraud the city of his home out of $10,000 would not stop at a couple of millions, if he had command of Uncle Sam's pocketbook.

There are first-class chances for a scrimmage in New York if Johnny Davenport gets too official. The democratic campaign managers will defend their rights.

The cracking of the party whip may bring out interviews in favor of Gus Wendt, but the votes cannot be dropped into the ballot box in that way. Vote for Kohn.

Workingmen can show their disapproval of Carnegie and Frick methods by voting for Cleveland. There is much inconsistency in the combination of the two elements.

Byron Ritchie will render good service for Toledo's harbor in the securing of an appropriation. He has the force and ability to achieve success. Vote for Ritchie.

Hamilton county democrats have gotten together in the present campaign, which means that there will be at least a portion of their ticket elected. The more the merrier.

The parade Saturday night was a reflection on the energy and enterprise of Toledo. Democrats will turn in and help sooner than see such a pitiable sight again.

An X at the head of the democratic ticket will simplify the count Tuesday night and the result can be more quickly given out on the Bee's canvas. Bear this in mind.

Mr. P. C. Hudson has no reason to be ashamed of his canvass. It has been gentlemanly from the start, quite in contrast to that made against him. Vote for Hudson for judge.

Ashley preserves his record as a gymnast in his letter to Mr. E. D. Potter on the park question. Wait until after election, and then the matter will be discussed is his plea.

Voters of Lucas county and the rest of the circuit court district ought to esteem it a privilege to make choice of a jurist like Charles H. Scribner for the bench. Re-elect Judge Scribner.

Lieutenant-Governor Sheehan stakes his reputation as a political prophet on the statement that New York will give Cleveland 20,000 majority. That's as good as a full hundred thousand.

Ashley's organs boast of his riches and large private interests. These private interests would interfere with public duties, and with all his promises, Ashley has not promised to give them up.

The Commercial is very unfortunate in its reference to Ashley as an employer. All workmen who have received his money have rendered an equivalent, but the vice versa does not come in.

It now comes out that a verdict has not been reached in the case of Rev. Heber Newton for heresy. Bishop Potter says the papers were a little ahead of time, or rather too soon with their scoop.

Col. Waldorf will soon return to his home in Lima, and Brothers Brown and Austin to the practice of law. 'Tis sad, but cannot be helped. It's the whirligig of politics.

Another monkey and parrot time is expected at the meeting of the board of education to-night. One of the important jobs the people have on hand is to remodel the board, and it will be done in part next spring.

Traveling men will not be overjoyed at the information that the trunk lines contemplate withdrawing mileage books after May of next year. The managers figure that the world's fair will furnish all the business they can accommodate.

The telegraph columns in the past few days have given reports of the arrest of republicans for false registration in New York and other states. And yet the party's orators on the stump have the effrontery to proclaim that they are in favor of a fair ballot.

Ashley's squib in reply to Mr. Potter's letter on First Ward parks is a death-bed confession, in which but little stock can or will be taken. Ashley's organ says ante-election promises do not count. In Mr. Ashley's case the statement is no doubt correct.

Mr. John Lorenz, who makes affidavit to the opposition of Gus Wendt to Charley Jones, is neither an office holder nor an office seeker, but a strong republican, and is opposed to putting in office men connected with his own party who go back on their best friends, who prate about their interest in and care for old soldiers, and basely betray them when the opportunity offers.

Army veterans who hesitate to believe that Gus Wendt worked against Charley Jones, as stated by an honest man under oath, have only to look to the returns of the Fourth ward for confirmation of the truth of the charge. Jones was lost in that ward. Some republican was certainly at work there. Isn't Mr. Lorenz right in saying it was Gus Wendt? Who else could it be. The probabilities, as well as the facts, are against Wendt.

Why is it necessary for Charley Jones and others to say they don't think Gus Wendt worked against Charley? This is not evidence. The affidavit of Mr. Lorenz is, and no one is able to impugn the character of Mr. Lorenz. Why does not Wendt himself accept the opportunity of denying and disproving the circular, if he can? Simply because he knows the proof is on the other side, and he "hunts his hole."

Editor Knabenshue's personal explanation for the benefit of Mr. Ashley is a generous act on his part, but somehow or other the impression among the people of Toledo, democrats and republicans alike, that Jim Ashley and Caleb Mason were one and the same person, has taken such deep root that it cannot be dislodged at this late date. It is not now necessary to go into a discussion of the reasons for the belief.

The circular accusing Gus Wendt with treachery to Charley Jones was scattered broadcast by republicans, whom the party organs accuse of being enemies of Wendt. If these republicans were not truthful, should not Wendt be able to show it, irrespective of Mr. Kohn. That they are truthful is unfortunate for Wendt, and a reason why straight republicans should vote for Mr. Kohn, in condemnation of the duplicity of their own party's candidate.

CHALLENGERS, BEWARE.

The management of the Toledo & Ann Arbor railroad has turned its entire force loose and hundreds of them will work at the polls to-morrow.

See to it that none but those registered are allowed to vote.

FAKE RESOLUTIONS.

The Commercial this morning publishes fake resolutions alleged to have been adopted by the Switchmen of the city, endorsing Ashley.

The alleged resolution is a lie, pure and simple, and the Bee has been requested to state so. The railroad men of the city are opposed to the blacklisting system and are, therefore, opposed to Ashley.

It is too late in the day to spring any such raw roorbacks, and the attempt of Ashley's managers to bolster up a lost cause by fake resolutions will not work.

It is the solemn and responsible duty of every railroad man, of every mechanic, of every member of oragnized labor, to vote against Ashley to-morrow.

And VOTE EARLY.

DEMOCRATS, VOTE EARLY.

It is a most important duty that devolves on all democrats to-morrow.

The Bee has repeatedly pointed out the necessity of getting out the full vote in order to win a notable victory.

The last appeal to democrats now is to vote early. Manufacturers have not replied to the request to close down at 4 p. m. to-morrow, and consequently the mechanics and workingmen generally must take advantage of such opportunities as are offered.

Make the best effort possible to vote before going to work, and during the day make further efforts to have such democrats as are working with you vote before 6 p. m.

Do this and all will be well. Fail to do it, and you fail in an important duty.

VOTE EARLY.

THE CIRCUIT JUDGESHIP.

Lucas county has it in its power to retain Judge Scribner on the circuit bench. Reports received by the Bee from the various counties in the district indicate that Wickham will run largely behind his ticket, on general principles. He has been a chronic office-seeker and office-holder, and Huron and the rest of the counties in his old congressional and judicial districts have long since tired of him. The greatest opposition to Wickham is to be found among republicans. His services have never been satisfactory, and his political career will end with this election if the voters of Lucas only do their duty. Local pride, if there was no higher motive, should bring to Mr. Scribner the full support of the county.

Voters of Lucas, retain Judge Scribner on the bench which he has so highly honored in the past six years.

ASHLEY GETTING DESPERATE.

Desperation has certainly seized Ashley and his agents. They are using every persuasion possible upon known democratic voters and promising to give a vote for Cleveland for a vote for Ashley. Democrats, however proud of Cleveland, will hardly be deceived by such a transparent trick, but if any democrat has been induced to enter into such a foolish arrangement he should at once call it off, as he has no assurance that the republican who bargains thus is any more honest in his offer to trade than in his pretended sacrifice of the head of his party ticket—a cowardly proceeding at best, and worthy only of men whose motive is deceit.

Democrats should see to it that every vote counts to-morrow for their party nominees. It is known that several republicans have arranged to send their democratic employes out of the city. Such matters have been arranged chiefly on boats leaving port and by superior officers of railroads who are favorable to Ashley. On Saturday one man who had no chance to register on any of the regular days obtained the required order from the board of elections, but was unable to present it to his precinct to-day, because he was sent out of the city again this morning, on the order of his employers. Every means has been taken to dispose of single democratic votes, therefore every democrat who can reach the polls to-morrow should make his ballot count straight for the whole ticket.

BYRON F. RITCHIE.

Byron F. Ritchie, the democratic nominee for congress, is entitled to the vote of every democrat in the Ninth district. He was drafted into service and answered his party's call. The nomination was not of his seeking. His election has left the range of probabilities; it is now positively assured.

Mr. Ritchie has no axes to grind in congress; his only aim would be to further the interests of Toledo.

Against him is a political demagogue, who has been endeavoring to get back to congress ever since he was so emphatically sat down upon by the voters of the district in 1868. To allow him to be elected is almost a crime. The Bee has endeavored to show the impropriety, to use no no harsher term, of his return, and believes that he will be defeated.

But how will it be done?

By the democrats, aided by fair-minded republicans in the Ninth district, presenting a solid front at the polls and voting for Mr. Ritchie.

The time for argument has passed. The situation now demands action.

Get out the anti-Ashley vote, democratic and republican, and the pompous gentleman will be overwhelmingly defeated. His tactics have been the most unscrupulous in the history of politics in this section, and condemnation cannot be too severe.

Byron Ritchie is far better equipped for the position than is James M. Ashley. He is a leading attorney, a gentleman of the brightest intelligence, a young and active man, is acquainted with the needs of the people, and his interests are those of Toledo.

The Bee appeals to the voters to elect him as congressman, and is firm in the conviction that the Ninth district will never have occasion to regret the action.

Vote for Byron F. Ritchie.

VOTE, DEMOCRATS, VOTE.

An impudent attempt is being made to induce democrats to refrain from voting tomorrow. Money without stint and coercion the meanest and most despicable are being used to this end.

It is barely possible that some may be induced to stay away from the polls, but honest men cannot be bought and courageous men cannot be coerced into wrong doing.

It is wrong, radically and emphatically wrong, to shirk an imperative duty.

Democrats, your duty on next Tuesday is plain and imperative. Go to the polls early and make an effort to have your democratic neighbor do likewise.

A thorough and careful poll of Lucas county shows a large democratic gain in the registration over two years ago. It is the opinion of the democratic executive committee, after a painstaking investigation, that all that is now necessary to place Lucas county safely in the democratic column is to get out the registered vote.

For the sake of the cause, which is a battle for personal and commercial liberty, every democrat should vote.

For the sake of defeating the most unscrupulous demagogue that has ever sought the suffrages of the people, every democrat should vote.

For the sake of principle, of manhood, of right over wrong, Vote! Vote!!

For the sake of your own homes and hearths, whose interests are at stake, vote, and see that your democratic neighbor registers his vote.

A desperate effort is being made to defeat the will of the people in this district. The full patronage of the federal institutions are being used to elect Ashley.

Office-holders, city, county, state and federal, have been freely bled in order to swell the corruption fund that has been subscribed to buy this district.

The present is a glorious opportunity, democrats, to emancipate this congressional district from the thraldom of the money power.

It is for you to say if money is all powerful. Is gold the standard of all worth and merit?

Can it or will it out-balance the life-long wrong-doing of a political mountebank.

Will the money gouged from the laborer buy a seat in congress for the man who unhesitatingly places his iron heel on the neck of labor?

It is not nearly so much a question of Byron F. Ritchie and James M. Ashley as of right over wrong, of corruption and coercion over straightforward manliness.

This is the last appeal. If the vote is gotten out, Ashley will be defeated and the boycott and the blacklist and general political perfidy will have received a defeat that will prove their eternal destruction.

VOTE, DEMOCRATS, VOTE!

ASHLEY'S ATTEMPTED FRAUD.

Beyond and above everything Mr. Ashley poses as the friend and benefactor of Toledo, and yet within the present year Mr. Ashley has attempted to defraud the city he so loves (?) out of $10,000.

The charge is no new one. It was proven by the highest republican authority in Toledo—the Blade. The organ on the corner claims the distinction, and perhaps properly.

Think of a reputable newspaper, or one claiming to be such, fathering the candidacy of a man for congress who one short year ago, it boasts of exposing for attempting to defraud the city out of $10,000.

Lest it might be thought that the Bee colors the situation, the Blade's own statements in regard to the attempted fraud is herewith subjoined:

"The Brice omitted personal tax case has its parallel in Toledo. The amount in total on which the omitted tax will be computed, if the charges are proven, is $28,385,713 of bonds, stocks and credits to be personally owned by Hon. James M. Ashley.

"The Blade exclusively last night predicted the revelation in a short time of a delinquency of such magnitude and character. The revelation came last evening when Mr. Warwick, of the tax inquisition firm of Morgenthaler & Warwick, came into Vordtriede's office about 5 o'clock, and filed the case. The investigation has been going on, but with exceeding quietness, for a long time, and was in progress, it is said, even before the publication of the Brice tax matter. It is also said that Gov. Ashley asked that the case be held in abeyance until the settlement in the courts of the Brice matter. Now it is settled, not very satisfactorily, however.

"The inquisitor timed his visit to this city in accordance with the announcement of Gen. Ashley's appearance at the Wheeler opera house to address the colored people last evening, in order that the service of the summons might be made upon him with certainty. It is said that Mr. Ashley's demurrer to the charge will be non-residence in Ohio, he spending most of his time in New York city."

Yes, it was a revelation. Mr. Ashley had been accused of many serious acts of commission and omission, but this was the gravest.

In an interview Mr. Ashley denied any knowledge, and yet when the matter was pushed he came forward and simply acknowledged the attempted fraud by giving his check for $10,209.76, due for the following years and amounts:

1886	$57,150	$1,600.00
1887	60,000	1,680.00
1888	60,000	1,620.00
1889	45,000	1,305.00
1890	75,000	2,175.00
1891	$60,00	1,620.00
		$10,000.20
Penalty		209.56
		$10,209.76

And yet the Blade asks honest men to support for congress the same man who attempted to defraud the city and county out of $10,000.

What do the tax-payers of Lucas county think of this record of the republican candidate for congress?

The best and most thorough way to rebuke this Falstaff of modern times is by defeating him at the polls to-morrow.

ANOTHER FIZZLE.

The Parade, Were You There? 'Twas a Glorious Affair,

With the Music and Marching and Moxie;

The Third and the Second, on Which We All Reckoned,

And the Seventh, Oh, the Seventh, Is Foxy.

And the Sixth and the Ninth Were Not In It, But Then, We Had Music and Marching and Moxie.

It was a sight to make the gods and angels weep.

Squire, the great W. I., at the head of such an aggregation. Alas, how we've fallen.

Where, oh, where were the booming cannon, the thundering tramp of marching men, the glorious bicycle parade, and the thousand and one great and good things promised by the organ on the corner?

It was such a stupendous fizzle that the fiasco of two weeks ago becomes a triumphal success in comparison.

At the republican headquarters on Superior street, Boss Squire and Boss Southard sat in solitary grandeur, and the new marching suits lay unnoticed on the billiard table and chairs.

"Step right in, gentlemen, and select your suit," Mr. Squire said to a few democrats who were hunting for signs of the promised pageant.

Nix. The suits still lay where they were, and the cloud on Southard's brow grew dark as night.

Similar scenes were going on in the different wards throughout the city.

In the second ward a hired drum corps was waking the echoes in Mr. Jacobson's junk shop, but the parader came not. The new suits were left where they lay, and not a single soul turned out from the Second.

Were it not for the fact that W. I. Squire led the little squad of horn-blowing boys that marched up Summit street an hour or so after the speaking commenced at Memorial hall, the aggregation would have been naturally taken for a section of the Salvation army.

There were 32 horsemen, 212 boys under age and 43 men—mostly hired for the occasion—in the "great and closing rally."

The Sixth had 21 boys and men in line, and this was much better than the Fourth and Fifth. The Eighth made the best turnout.

The voters in the contingent from the Eighth, however, were mostly workingmen who were marching at the schedule rate of 50 cents a mile.

Ex-Policeman Charlie Herman, as good a democrat as breathes, carried the Eight ward flag, but he got his $10 in advance.

Think of having to pay a standard-bearer $10, and yet Herman himself is authority for this statement, which he made in Hanner's after the parade.

Lord, how the money must be flying. If $10 are paid for a flag bearer how much will not be paid for a vote-holder?

And yet, even at $10 a voter, the parade Saturday night could not have cost over $500. There were not 50 voters in line.

At Memorial hall the efforts of Messrs. Hamilton, Griffin, Gibson and the glee club to make the audience realize the fact that—

"'Twas plain to be seen, there's a thinking machine
In the head under grandfather's hat."

were not eminently successful.

There was a chilliness of Arctic intensity in the air, and a feeling prevailed that after Tuesday there will be neither thinking machine nor head under Grandfather's Hat.

HOW TO VOTE.

Extract From Instructions of Board of Elections of Toledo.

"If the elector desires to vote a mixed ticket, or in other words, for candidates of different parties, he shall make a cross mark in the circular space above the name of a party, some of whose candidates he desires to vote for, and then make a cross mark before the name of any candidate of any other party for whom he may desire to vote; in which case, the cross mark in the circular space above the name of a party will cast the elector's vote for every candidate on the ticket of such party, except for offices for which candidates are marked on other party tickets, and the cross marks before the names of such candidates will cast the elector's vote for them."

SHOT AT PLAY.

Cateret, N. J., Nov. 7.—Several boys were playing with a revolver yesterday evening. George Jordet shot and killed one of his play fellows, John Andreas. There was no motive for the deed. The Andreas boy held his hat over his heart an dasked Jordet if he could hit it. He fired, killing Anders instantly.

GOING OUR WAY.

The Prospects for Ritchie's Election Brilliant.

Republicans Bet Out of Their Boots.

Some Tall Betting and No Takers—Political Gossip All Along the Line.

It is coming our way.

Look out for a landslide that will carry everything before it.

Lucas county is in line, and there are the best prospects of the whole democratic ticket being elected.

Ashley will drag down with him the entire republican ticket.

The betting up to Saturday night was decidedly favorable to the republicans. Saturday night the turn came, and a few democrats combined and swept the platter of everything offered.

So much has the situation changed that this morning on 'Change bets of 3 to 1 on Cleveland having 25,000 in New York state was offered without takers.

Willard Robison, representing a republican syndicate, was offered the following and refused it:

$500 on Ritchie.

$500 that New York state goes for Cleveland.

$500 that Cleveland is elected.

$500 that the taker would lose all the bets.

Jim Ashley has made a careful canvass of Lucas county, and his figures are as follows:

	Ashley maj.	Ritchie maj.
First ward	300	...
Second ward	100	...
Third ward	300	...
Fourth ward	...	250
Fifth ward	...	250
Sixth ward	even	...
Seventh ward	200	...
Eighth ward	400	...
Ninth ward	200	...
Total	1,500	500
Ashley's maj.	1,000

If Ashley's majority in Lucas county is only 1,000, then he is beaten.

A conservative estimate is as follows:

	Ritchie.	Ashley.
First ward	...	200
Second ward	...	75
Third ward	...	200
Fourth ward	250	...
Fifth ward	350	...
Sixth ward	50	...
Seventh ward	...	125
Eighth ward	...	250
Ninth ward	...	50
	650	250
Ashley's maj.		150

Editor Pariski attempted to get the Polish marching clubs to march in the parade Saturday night, but was unsuccessful.

An old soldier would like to know what General Gibson was doing when he sent President Harrison charging in that famous battle. It was simply impossible, the old soldier says.

This evening a grand rally will be held at the corner of Junction avenue and Forrer street. There will be music and good speaking.

Byron Ritchie's stock has gone away up beyond par.

VOTE EARLY.

GERMAN CITIZENS

Cannot Be Bamboozled by Ashleyites.

Messrs. Eppstein and Brand Have Something to Say to the Express.

To the German citizens of Toledo:

The German Express having denied that Mr. J. M. Ashley has ever been a know nothing or in any way opposed to the interests of German citizens, we desire to make the following offer:

We will give $1,000 to any charitable institution in Toledo if, in the July session of congress in 1867, Mr. Ashley did not introduce, work and vote for the following resolution:

After the 4th of July, 1876, all citizens of the United States, thereafter becoming 21 years of age, and all who may thereafter be naturalized, shall be required to read and write the English language as a qualification to vote.

The Express denies the assertion that Mr. Ashley introduced the above resolution, which was expressly aimed at our German, French and Polish citizens.

Let the Express put up or shut up.

WILD CAT BANKS.

There has been widely circulating in the city of New York a campaign document against Cleveland bank votes on which are prominently displayed the face of the democratic candidate and a large central cut of a fierce wildcat. This document shows the desperate straits into which the republicans have fallen. The proposition in the democratic platform to repeal the 10 per cent. tax on state bank circulation was urged on the ground that the act was unconstitutional. Democrats hold that the only authority under the fundamental law for the levying of a tax is for revenue only. The 10 per cent. levy on said bank circulation was not for revenue, but for the purpose of suppressing the state bank issue.

Now, had the government enacted a measure declaring that there should be no state bank circulation, it is probable that the court would have decided the act unconstitutional, just as, should congress enact a measure declaring that certain industries of a special nature required protection and impose a tax for the purpose, it is almost certain that said act would not stand the test of our existing supreme tribunal.

Consequently, to avoid that result, failing to recite the true object in the body of the measure, the republicans enact the McKinley bill, which, with its outrageous duties and discriminating provisions, effects that protection for which they were afraid openly to declare.

Just so with the state bank tax. The democrats have no desire to reinstate wildcat money; in fact, if they did, it could never stand as against our existing national circulating currency.

Existing obligations could not be liquidated therein, nor would the people accept it in exchange for the commodities, except at such rates as would render it practically unavailable.

State bank notes were accepted and the system continued many years ago because there was nothing better with which to facilitate exchanges. Everything that exists is the result of some condition that enables it to exist.

Now, if the conditions are not such as to enable the old state banking system to be re-established, it cannot exist even though a 10 per cent. premium be placed upon the issue instead of a 10 per cent. tax. Inter-communication between the states is now so much greater than it was when the state bank money existed that this currency could not to-day meet the demands of trade, and hence if the present national system were abolished something similar or identically the same thing would have to be re-established. Now it is clear that the United States bonds on which the circulation is based will soon become very scarce, and ere long all will be paid. In this event, bonds would have to be reissued for the express purpose of forming a basis for circulation, or some other system would have to be devised. Extensive inter-communication would force the adoption of some system national in its import and bearing, so that the state bank measure is no more likely to oppress us than is a cyclone to overturn the capitol at Washington.

How's Your Liver?

Is the Oriental salutation knowing that good health cannot exist without a healthy Liver. When the Liver is torpid the Bowels are sluggish and constipated, the food lies in the stomach undigested, poisoning the blood; frequent headache ensues; a feeling of lassitude, despondency and nervousness indicate how the whole system is deranged. On Ashley and His Record—With Other References to Toledo and Toledoans.

By a Very Large Majority.

Byron F. Ritchie is a better man than James M. Ashley.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Doing Our Best.

The Toledo Bee is making a gallant fight for the democratic ticket in Lucas.—Napoleon Northwest.

One Among Thousands.

The Ashley blow-out cost $120. There may be something nice about such a reception as Mr. Ashley received here, but the figure is a little high for any other than a monopolist.—North Baltimore Times.

A Self-Made Man.

Preston C. Hudson, candidate for common pleas judge, is a resident of Toledo, and one of the best known attorneys in Toledo. He is popular with all classes, and has the ability to make a most trustworthy and excellent judge. He is practically a self-made man and will be well supported throughout the district. He should receive every democratic vote in Sandusky county.—Fremont Messenger.

Judge Scribner.

Charles H. Scribner, for circuit judge of this district, is one of the ablest attorneys in northern Ohio. He is eminently fitted for the honorable position and will fill it in the future as he has in the past in the most creditable manner. He should be elected by a big majority, as in casting a vote for him you will show that you appreciate the selection of a man worthy of a position which should be intrusted to only the best and ablest men.—Fremont Messenger.

Remember That Ashley Blacklists.

Laboring men, remember that the republican candidate for congress, Ashley, blacklists his workmen who do not do just as he wants them to do. If they fail he discharges them and gives notice to other railroads not to hire them. One poor man with a family he followed all over the country and had him discharged because he would not swear in court to a deliberate lie to save Ashley money.—Ottawa County Exponent.

They Know Ashley.

Ashley's cowardly make-shift upon the labor question is enough to turn every laboring man's vote against him. That he is no friend of labor is evident from the position his own employes take in election. Not only is he opposed by his own workmen, but every railroad man in his district is against his election. He is emphatically opposed to union labor, and no union is recognized among any of the men employed on the Toledo & Ann Arbor railroad. Then how foolish to listen to or believe one single word of his tirade on labor union. He don't mean it, as his past record plainly shows and above all squirmers deliver us from the one who is willing to say yes to every imaginable proposition simply to catch a vote.—North Baltimore Times.

Tre Congressional Contest.

There is a congressional contest in this district, between capital and labor, as to which shall be in the ascendency. Capitalist, turncoat and boodler, James M. Ashley, the railroad king of Toledo, is the republican candidate for congress, by virtue of a liberal distribution of the "long green," over several deserving and worthy republican candidates, while on the democratic side Byron F. Ritchie, whose life and work is in common with the laboring classes, and whose ability and labor in congress would be spent in the interests of his constituents, instead of monopolies and trusts, is the opponent of this aristocratic knave, James M. Ashley.

Ashley is a known enemy of the laboring classes. He has always been, he always will be. He is a political demagogue, a chronic office seeker, and has joined every political party for the purpose of gaining ascendency since the beginning of his political career, in the early days of the republican party.

He is unworthy the support of any honest republican, and truly the enemy of labor in every form. Let the honest unbiased voter go to the polls next Tuesday and vote to silence the tyranny of this unworthy demagogue, by voting for Byron F. Ritchie.—Oak Harbor Press.

Renegade Ashley.

It seems that Absalom Ashley, he of the flowing locks and big wallet, will be snowed completely under an avalanche of honest votes for Byron Ritchie, and public opinion in favor of tariff reform. Ashley is a renegade "what not," a back number who wishes to break into congress from the Toledo district by the boodle route. He has a son, James A. Jr., who is 9 feet 2 in his stockings, or thereabouts, and he is using such elongated dimensions in legging it for Pa. The Pa has 1,700 majority in his favor but Ritchie will prove a "Jack the Giant Killer" and see well to it that next Tuesday the Ashley race of giants will be flattened down, hammered down and crushed into a Lilliputian race politically. It takes something else besides a tall "figger," a railroad and a portable wind bellows to carry an election nowadays, especially in a district where the controlling power is in a city like Toledo, where enlightenment exists in job lots. The cry of "down with the Ashley influence" has grown into a stentorian demand of a universal nature that will receive recognition.—Napoleon Northwest.

Anti-Ashleyits Can Expect Nothing.

While in Toledo Tuesday in conversation with a prominent republican there he said there was no enthusiasm for Mr. Ashley in that city. In fact, he said, the better element would vote against him. While the republicans of that city and district, he said, were working hard to keep up the party's majority making it possible for republicans to get office, Mr. Ashley was using his influence to destroy it and make it impossible for republicans to be elected, failing in that, he resorts to the next thing to rob the workers of their fruits; he hired all the slums of the city and run our primaries and conventions; if we allow him to be elected every friend of Griffin, Hamilton, Luckey, Lincoln and the workers cannot expect anything, and the Ashley boodle gang will control everything for years and we will be worse off than if democrats controlled. If he is knocked out now the friends of the republican party will be in control for the future. Every man who wishes to save the republican party and believes in manhood will vote against Ashley, and you will find that Toledo has plenty of them, and we hope Ottawa county will show manhood enough to down the fraud.—Ottawa County Exponent.

A Shining Mark.

Some graduate of the insane asylum is making a stell-gray burro of himself by sending iridescent and startling specimens of hyperbole to the Toledo Blade from this city. The swinebath he writes is of a political nature and is about the most robust article of prevarication that has ever been gotten up in Defiance. It by far eclipses the masterly efforts of the Express. It states that the republicans will have an overwhelming victory in this county and that Andy Tuttle will be elected sheriff. The cry of "ring" is introduced with brilliant variations, and the democrats cited as having given up the fight. The falsity of the thing is only exceeded by its ludicrousness, as no one with common sense claims or imagines that old reliable Defiance county will be guilty of electing republicans this year. Whoever the Blade correspondent is, he will never make a mark in the journalistic world by writing such stuff as that in Friday night's issue of the Toledo sheet. If the Blade cared anything for its reputation for reliability it would call its correspondent down, but the political sense of that paper is so beautifully absent that such stuff is allowed to appear in its columns.—Defiance News.

May the Fates Forbid.

A vote for Harrison and Reid is a vote for Carnegie and Frick. If Carnegie and Frick succeed in this election, they will not have to buy another. The force bill will pass, and the marshals can be used by Carnegie and Frick to force the election just as they may want it.—Steubenville Gazette.

Sherman Spoke the Truth.

John Sherman was guilty of a slip in his Cooper Union speech which ought to subject him to heroic party discipline. Inadvertently, perhaps, he said that tariff acts such as the McKinley bill "were taxes on the people." Occasionally a republican orator forgets and tells the truth.—Cincinnati Southwest.

Printers Will Remember Him.

Two years ago Whitelaw Reid said in his New York Tribune that the time had arrived to call a halt on voting away of pensions. He now talks differently. That was when he ran a "rat" office, but when his prospects for office loomed up he slipped into the Typographical union, and now talks "turkey" very fluently.—Leipsic Free Press.

So It Is.

A man who votes the republican ticket this year votes also his unqualified approval of the McKinley Bill. There can be no evasion about it. A vote for Harrison or for C. H. Grosvenor for congress is an indorsement of McKinleyism, of high tariff taxes and the enrichment of the few at the expense of the many.—Chillicothe Advertiser.

More Corruption.

An idea of how the force bill proposed by the republicans would work if it should become a law may be obtained by what is now transpiring in Delaware. The federal supervisors of election lately appointed for that state, have been conducting their supervision in such a way as to block the registration of votes in democratic districts almost exclusively.—Circleville Democrat.

CLEVELAND ON CORRUPTION.

The following extract from the recent speech of Mr. Cleveland at the business men's meeting in the Lenox Lyceum, New York, is full of meaning and sounds an alarm which no honest citizen should fail to recognize:

"It is a confession most humiliating to American citizenship that with a cause so thoroughly entrenched in reason, and commending itself so clearly to the intelligence of patriotic Americans, we daily hear predictions of republican success, based upon the ability of that party to purchase the votes of the people. A little reflection, it seems to me, cannot fail to arouse the American conscience to the wickedness as well as the peril of a debauched suffrage. It is a plain proposition that our government is only true to the principles upon which it rests when in its operatoion it represents the honest and intelligent sentiments of the people. When it does not its vigor and its very life are gone and it remains but the mere semblance of a free government—the weakest and most deformed plan of rule that ever deluded mankind."

There can be no doubt that money will be used to buy the votes by which the next president is to be elected. Neither party is absolutely free from the charge of corruption, but it has been so often reiterated that its harshness has been softened. How often in the affairs of life a thing contemptuously loathed is subsequently most fondly embraced. Even the vilest abuses are construed into beneficent uses by frequent contact and close association. The rankest odors become no longer nauseous if persistently applied to the at first offended olfactories.

So it is that the purchase of the ballot and the prostitution of the electorate is to-day looked upon without much disdain, and by many with open sanction.

How many times has it been said without a blush, "O, it cannot be avoided." What a sad commentary on the government of the country is the enforced admission that in the main that statement is correct. Thirteen to fifteen million Americans will on the 8th of November register their suffrage, and yet the election of the president hinges on the distribution of money in a few wards in New York, covering in all about one square mile of territory. The voters in those wards know about as much regarding the principles of the respective parties as a Fiji islander knows about the poems of Homer or the plays of Sophocles.

They have about as much interest at stake as the primitive aborigines discovered by Columbus had in the treasures and jewels of Ferdinand and Isabella, and yet thirteen million citizens, many of whom are educated and responsible, must abide by the verdict of these purchaseable hirelings. Age thou art ashamed. America thou hast lost thy sense of honor!

But, says the reflecting mind, where is the remedy, and how is it to be applied? It is to be feared that there is no remedy except the enactment of the franchise.

Democrats complain at the lamentable condition that looks to victory by the purchase of the ballot, yet as long as goods are for sale, goods will be bought, and it is as useless to expect an irresponsible citizen and a corrupt vagabond to refrain from selling his vote for a price as it is to expect palmettoes to luxuriate on the summits of Caucasus, or icicles to hang pendant from the corridors of hell.

This condition may continue until corruption will lead to disorder, disorder will lead to riot, and riot to anarchy. After the reign of devastation and pillage, murder and arson, crime and bloodshed, order can only be restored after violence is satiated, and a government will be re-established under some stronger form.

Such was the case in the French revolution. The reign of terror and anarchy was in the end supplanted by the dynasty of Bonaparte, and so in America will existing tendencies lead to trouble if not checked in time, the end of which will be that a government akin to an empire will be established on the ruins of a system that respects the inalienable rights of men. FREE CHURCH CONFERENCE.

New York, Nov. 7.—A cable dispatch says that the great free church conference, for hich preparations have been in progress for over a year, was formally opened to-day at Manchester. The conference is composed of delegates from all churches except the Catholic that are not under the patronage and control of the state, including the Presbyterian, Baptist, Congregational, and the various branches of the Methodist denomination. The gathering is one of the most important of its kind that has been held for many years, and will be watched with great interest by the Protestant Episcopal, or established church.

VOTE IT STRAIGHT.

The above is a fac-simile of the democratic ticket which all democrats and hundreds of good republicans will vote Tuesday next.

Vote it straight. Every man on it is worthy of your support. Some republican neighbor, however, who will not feel like voting the straigrt ticket, but who has a favorite on the democratic ticket, may ask you how he shall mark his ticket. Tell him to simply place a cross in the ring at the top of the democratic ticket, and one in front of the name for which he desires to record his vote.

To democrats only one word is necessary. Vote it straight. Mark an X in the ring over the democratic ticket, and wishing it good speed, let 'er go.

ANNIVERSARY.

The Y. M. C. A. Exercises Last Evening.

Addresses by Revs. S. G. Anderson, S. D. Hutsinpiller and Mr. H. E. King the Growth of the Association.

Last evening the Y. M. C. A. celebrated its twenty-seventh anniversary at the First Congregational church. The spacious church could not hold the great number who desired to attend and many were turned away. H. E. King, president of the association, talked in an interesting manner of the growth of the association at large and its work. He related how the association has increased from 63 branches in 1866 to 1,373 branches at present. In the same period the total membership had grown from 1,500 to 227,000. There are now 268 handsome buildings owned by the association. He stated that the local membership was 700 and that it had outgrown its present quarters and hoped soon to erect a building that would be a credit to the city.

Rev. S. D. Hutsinpiller told of the good influence the association had in a community and of its relation to the church. Rev. S. G. Anderson explained why it should have the hearty support of all church members. Rev. J. A. P. McGaw and Rev. Dr. Fisk also participated in the exercises.

Inez Parmater of the Musin Concert company sang two solos grandly. Mrs. Ainsworth also sang. The anniversary exercises were thoroughly enjoyable.

The Y. M. C. A. expects to do wonders the coming year. Eighteen ninety-three should see a new Association building in Toledo.

The wisest course in politics is to vote for the best man, and you cannot be mistaken. So, in the use of blood-purifiers, you can't be mistaken if you take Ayer's Sarsaparilla, because all parties agree that it is the best—the Superior Medicine. Try it this month.

AT THE THEATERS.

Music, Variety and Tragedy, a Goodly Store.

Gus Hill's Company at the People's —Robert Downing—A Big Bill at the Wonderland Musin.

Gus Hill's New York Stars will be at the People's all week. Toledoans like variety for a change and as Gus Hill always brings a first-class company the theater is bound to be crowded all week. The program will consist of new and original specialties juggling, singing, dancing, bar performing, tumbling and good comedy.

Concert This Evening.

The Star Course opens this evening at Wheeler's with the Musin Concert company as the attraction. The company consists of Ovide Musin, violinist; Annie Louise Tanner-Musin, the great soprano; Inez Parmater, the accomplished mezzo-soprano; Pere Delasco, late of Abbey & Grau's Italian Opera company, and Edward Scharf, solo pianist, receiver of the great Moscheles prize at the Leipsic conservatory of music.

Robert Downing.

The unexampled prosperity with which the season of Robert Downing, the favorite American tragedian, opened has continued throughout his tour, and he will come to Toledo with the proud distinction of having played to the largest receipts that have ever come to a tragedian starring in this country in the same space of time. Mr. Downing will bring here the same strong company, the same splendid special scenery, and the same gorgeous costumes as have helped to make his appearance so strong a drawing card in all the large cities. Mr. Downing will play Othello at the Wheeler opera house next Thursday evening, and The Gladator Friday evening.

At the Wonderland.

One of the big, or rather the little, attractions at the Wonderland this week will be the famous midget, Hop O' My Thum, a little fellow who can stand in a plug hat. He is said to be the smallest human being on earth. Then there will be Austin the strong man, Electa the electric woman, the Family Damm, the educated wrestling bears, the Sisters Orlando, Spanish dancers; Frank Emerson, J. C. Medway, the Whitneys, Grace Milburn, and the O'Brien sisters. It will be a great show.

A QUEER HONEYMOON.

e Made Love to Her Husband in Interior Africa.

It has often been asserted by physicians that women can stand pain much better than men, and it seems that to this might be added the statement that some of them at least—in fact all who have been put to the test—are the equals of the sterner sex in combating the trials and privations of travel and exploration.

Ida Pfeiffer, the Viennese globe trotter, "went it alone"—that is, she waited until she had buried her husband and established her sons in business, and started out to view the wonderful sights of this wonderful world of ours. She was nearly 50 years old when she began her solitary journeyings, yet she girdled the earth twice, went to spots where men had never dared to set foot, hobnobbed with savages and sovereigns, and left an account of her experiences that is one of the most interesting tales of travel that a reader can find.

Another woman of more recent date than Ida Pfeiffer has also "Journeyed far, strange countries for to see." She was an English maiden of pluck and peculiar views and her name was Menie Muriel Dowie. While scarcely out of her teens she went to the Carpathians clad in men's clothes, and thoroughly explored that almost inaccessible and peculiarly inhospitable region. The people, remarkable to note, treated her with great courtesy, and afforded her all the facilities their poverty would allow.

They even went so far as to set guards about—at a proper distance, of course—whenever she desired to bathe in a mountain stream, so that no Peeping Tom could disturb her ablutions. She returned to London, wrote a book, which is quite interesting, was interviewed, met a handsome young journalist, fell in love, was wooed and won, and now, as Mrs. Henry Norman, her "heart's in the highlands," literally, for it is there that she and her husband are enjoying a prolonged honeymoon.

Speaking of honeymoons and explorations it is well to record the fact that when Florence Van Sass became the wife of Samuel White Baker in 1860, they took a bridal trip to Africa that lasted six years. They wished to discover the sources of the Nile, and located the lake now designated as the Albert Nyanza. Returning to England, Mr. Baker was knighted, and then the adventurous couple resumed their travels, visiting nearly every accessible spot on earth.

Annie Boyle Hore is another English woman who has gained honorable repute by accompanying her husband to dangerous and little known regions. For 13 years Capt. E. C. Hore looked after certain interests of his government in Central Africa, and wherever he went his wife went with him. See developed splendid abilities as a traveler, and when they got leave of absence and started for a visit home last spring she stood the 800 miles' tramp to Zanzibar better than most of the natives.

But it is an American woman who has "broken the record" for endurance and capability under condition that might wear out men of stronger physique, but less nerve. Reference is made to Mrs. Peary, wife of Lieutenant Peary, who recently returned from a long-continued and highly-satisfactory exploration of Greenland. With scientific and geographical details of that arduous task the newspapers have familiarized us, but it is of interest to set down the observations of the first white woman to spend a year in the Arctic regions.

Said Mrs. Peary on her arrival at Philadelphia: "I think Greenland is a lovely place, and I enjoyed myself immensely. Of course I am glad to get back and meet all my friends, but I would enjoy going back again very much. You have no idea how rapidly the winter passed, except during the time Mr. Peary was away, but that was mostly during the summer, of course. I really feel as if I had not been gone any time.

"I gave a reception at New Year's, and we had a very merry time. The Esquimaux, or 'Huskies,' as they are called, gathered around our headquarters, and I gave them bread and coffee. Every tin can that we emptied I gave to these people, and you would think they were the greatest treasures in the world to see how they prized them.

We took two Newfoundland dogs with us, Frank and Jack, and they made friends with the Huskies and their dogs right away. Frank wandered off one day with a party of them, and we never expected to see him again. But about three months later he came back. Where he had been all the time I have no idea. We gave Jack away before we left."

Unlike Miss Dowie, Mrs. Peary did not discard female dress for male attire, but wore heavy blanket skirts beneath skin dresses. Although her experiences were not always pleasant, she is satisfied with the adventure, and probably it is a lucky thing she was along, as it will be remembered that the Lieutenant broke his leg at about the time of landing in Greenland and had to be nursed back to health before beginning his observations.

HANDY SUMMER GIRL.

But Not the Sort That Is Depicted by the Funny Paragraphers.

Judge C. G. Butt enjoys the nice distinction of which few can boast, viz., that of being rescued from what was at least a remotely possible watery grave. While out bathing on Ormond beach with two Orlando young ladies Wednesday afternoon he was seized with an adventurous fit—disengaged himself from their hold upon him, and went out into the surf beyond his depth, says the Orlando (Fla.) Reporter. After vainly endeavoring to regain the shallows, he yelled for assistance, and Miss Maggie Pitts, who is more than his equal in height, as well as in many other respects, boldly waded out and towed the judge ashore. Beyond being externally and internally saturated with salt water he suffered no inconvenience. Miss Pitts should be attached to the life saving service.

THE BRIDAL DRESS.

Oh, the rustle to it and the glisten to it!
Pray, then, listen to it.
It is white and bright, with a shimmer of light,
Like the moon on the snow on a winter's night.
There are pearls sown over it;
And the laces which cover it—
Was there ever such lace?—like the dainty white trace
Of the frost on the pane, of such wonderful grace;
Was it ever woven by human hand,
Or was it the gift from a fairy's wand?
The orange blossoms so white and so sweet,
Fit to garland my lady from head to feet.
Oh, the whiteness of it!
Oh, the brightness of it!
Yet none too white
Or none too bright,
My bride is the daintiest maid I know—
The dearest and fairest and sweetest I trow,
Ever told of in song and story,
Ever sung of in tales of glory.
Come weal or come woe,
Nothing fears me, my bride;
The world's before me,
And I've you at my side.

It is a type of love, a certain domineering sort that fears the loss of its idol, but has no part in the relation known by the simpler term of friendship. THE Y. M. H. A.

Had Two Hundred Visitors Last Evening,

On the Occasion of the Formal Opening of the New Home of the Association.

The Young Men's Hebrew association had its formal opening last evening at the new rooms at the corner of Adams and Eleventh street. There were some two hundred visitors present. The dedication exercises took place at 8:30 o'clock. Rabbi Schreiber blessed the new home and made some very appropriate remarks.

Messrs. M. G. Bloch and M. M. Eppstein addressed the association. Mr. Bloch congratulated the boys on the progress they had made in so short a time and expressed himself as pleased to know that the younger generation in Toledo had Judaism at heart and were carrying its banner ever onward and upward.

M. M. Eppstein outlined a future course for the association to pursue for the elevation of young men. He congratulated the association heartily and promised earnest assistance in the work whenever required.

President S. A. Schlorsberg and Chas. K. Friedman responded feelingly in behalf of the association.

The home is a most pleasant one and the visitors expressed themselves as well pleased with all the young men have done.

WISE MEN'S FOLLIES.

There are few subjects more puzzling or more interesting to the student of human nature than the marvelous contradictions exhibited by the characters of many men to whom the world, not without good cause, has accorded the most distinguished niches in the temple of fame.

Foremost among all modern examples of mental paradox stands, of course, the extraordinary man whom Pope, sacrificing truth to an epigram, described as "the wisest, brightest, meanest of mankind." Even Francis Bacon could not be such an impossible monster as this, and yet, in an age of littleness combined with greatness and of the wisest folly, he was certainly facile princeps.

His mental vision pierced and his wondrous logic dissipated the errors of 2,000 years of wrong reasoning, and it is not too much to say that he first taught the average man to think correctly.

Yet this light of the philosophical world, in his day the foremost orator in Europe, prostituted his eloquence in special pleading to secure the conviction of his benefactor Essex, and betrayed his private confidence without shame to make his guilt unmistakable.

While he was shaping the future thought of the world he stooped to the most contemptible sycophancy to flatter the "learned fool" whose fraud could bestow the sordid favors he sought.

Avaricious in the extreme, he could yet see his servants pilfer the odd money he left about the house, and only say: "Ay, ay, poor knaves; it is their portion."

Modest as the greatest scholar of his day, he was also one of the most ostentatious of James courtiers. On one occasion, during a royal progress to Newmarket, this "meanest of mankind" gave a peasant £10 for bringing him some fruit.

This, by the way, was too much for the penurious "Jamie," who promptly reproved the extravagance with "My laird, this seems the way till the Beggar's Bush."

Elizabeth, capable of playing with the policy of the whole of Europe, and of defying with success the might of the leagued Catholic powers, could yet be fooled by the crassest flattery, and, when her mirrors no longer told a satisfactory tale, had them all destroyed.

She was by far the greatest of England's queens, and much greater than most of her kings; but she died at 70 sucking her finger and moping over the death of a lad she thought she was in love with.

Few who have wondered at and benefited by the use of those arithmetical miracles, logarithms, would imagine that their inventor believed in divination. And yet it is a fact that Napier, in July, 1594, made a regular contract with one Robert Logan, of Restalrig, to discover, by process of divination, a treasure supposed to be hidden in Logan's house at Fastcastle, on condition that he should receive a third of the value.

Napier's folly, however, is quite dwarfed by the colossal foolishness and vanity of the great Kepler, who, while making astronomy possible as a science, not only accepted all the absurdities of astrology, but believed that the earth and the planets were huge live animals moving through space by muscular force, and that men and the brute creation were parasites upon them.

Of a more innocent and pleasant, but still curious nature, are the intellectual peculiarities of such men as Descartes, Newton, Dr. Johnson, Sir James Stewart, Goldsmith, Blair and Adam Smith.

The profound author of the "Principia" would get up in the morning and sit for hours on the side of his bed quite oblivious of the necessity of putting on his clothes. Every one knows, too, how he lost a wife by stopping his pipe with his sweetheart's fair finger, and how he bade his servant remove the fire when he was too warm, instead of moving away from it himself.

It is even on record that Sir Isaac once asked a friend to dine off the fowl that had been bought for his own dinner, forgot all about it, and then believed that he had himself dined when he afterwards found the bones lying on the dish.

Dr. Johnson, in most things a thorough materialist, implicitly believed in second sight, always began to walk with the same foot, and never would step on the line between two paving stones.

Sir James Stewart, the father of political economy, made a compact with a very dear friend to the effect that whichever died first should try to revisit the other at a certain spot and hour, and after 20 years of exile, went to that spot every day to the end of his life, expecting the engagement to be kept.

IN A GONDOLA.

A Woman's Rhapsody on the Grace of a Gondolier.

No New England housekeeper could have a tenderer conscience for her possessions than has Achille, and certainly no more frugal thrift than he displays, particularly in the matter of his carpets. I have discovered that he has three sets; the first, superfine, brand new Brussels, white, scarlet and gold which graced our first triumphal entry into his gondola, and indeed lent splendor to two or three days of his engagement. Then they gave way to tapestries a trifle faded and worn, which themselves yielded in turn to still shabbier ones, which were brought on at the faintest sign of bad weather. But unless a gondolier was frugal, how could he live, when his highest wages come to a little over a dollar a day? I respect Achille's economies. He himself is a picturesque figure; not tall, but sinewy and slender, his body elastic and supple, as a trained gondolier is almost certain to be, with an easy play of the hips and limbs. His eyes shine out like turquoises from his bronzed face, which is decorated with long mustaches. His white linen shirt (occasionally fresh) is set off by a jaunty crimson sash, and his best hat has also a red ribbon with streamers; but he reserves his best hat, like his best rugs, for stately occasions. One sometimes sees an awkward gondolier—probably one who did not learn the trick of his trade in childhood—and one then becomes conscious of being so habituated to the graceful rhythmical movement that to have it disturbed affects the fastidious sense like false time in music. For the whole body of a good gondolier is instinct with the motion. He stands poised like a Mercury "new lighted," and his every muscle bends at every stroke. An unpracticed hand would soon find difficulties and dangers in winding through the narrow tortuous canals, but with a trained gondolier the art is delightfully invisible, the boat is so absolutely pliant to the master's hand; it obeys the least turn of the wrist, and moves on as easily and as silently as the waters which ebb and flow. The gondolier stands out of sight; the view of palace after palace with its wealth of sculptured frieze or its foliated arches, or across the shimmering distances of the lagoons, is wholly unimpeded. Nothing disturbs the comfort, the harmony, the sense of ease, pleasantness and charm. As we near the marble steps of our landing place all danger of even a jar is warded off, for some lounger on the riva, eager for one or two sous, runs towards us with a boat hook and carefully draws the gondola to the stairs. People with fragile hearts ought to live in Venice, away from the daily hairbreadth escapes and shocks to nerves which beset one in places where the prowling cab haunts, waylays and pursues. By a delightful paradox the brazen horses of St. Mark's preside over the one city where there are no horses.—Lippincott's.

STEEPLE CLIMBING AS A FUNCTION.

A mediæval custom still prevails in Frieberg, in Breisgau. This is observed on the birthday of the reigning grand duke of Baden, and consists of a foolhardy trip to the topmost part of the tower of the minister.

It is a dangerous enterprise, for the tower is 400 feet high, and the ascent is made from the exterior of the building.

The steeple-jacks in their ascent have to leap from stone to stone, often a yard apart, and one false step on the narrow ledges would be death. At the topmost pinnacle pistol shots announce that the climbers have succeeded. Then an immense gilded star revolves and the descent is begun.

Each man receives as a reward a sum of 5 marks from the state and a sumptuous dinner.

The other day, on the occasion of the 66th birthday of the grand duke of Baden, three men undertook the ascent. One of them, on arriving at a projecting bar of iron half way up, went through an acrobatic performance.

This was before an immense crowd of astonished spectators. He twisted and twirled about as if he were but within a few feet of the earth.

The originator of the theory that the earth is round was probably Thales of Miletus, about 640 B. C. He not only taught that the earth was globular in form, but of the five zones, some of the principal circles of the sphere, the capacity of the moon and the true course of the lunar eclipses. Pythagoras demonstrated, about 506 B. C., from the varying altitudes of the stars by change of place, that the earth must be round. Aristarchus of Samos maintained that the earth turned on its own axis and revolved about the sun, which doctrine was held by his contemporaries as so absurd that the philosopher nearly lost his life by his theory, 280 B. C.

Advice to Mothers of Fretful Babies

828 Huron St., Toledo, O., July 17, '92.
Hand Medicine Co., Gentlemen:

My baby is now three months old and has had colic all her life. We gave her all kinds of remedies without any beneficial effect. I was almost discouraged in trying anything else when a friend told me of your Dr. Hand's Colic Cure. I gave her 12 drops which acted like a charm. Now as soon as I discover she has wind colic I give her one or two doses which relieves her entirely. I want to advise all mothers who have fretful babies to use Dr. Hand's Colic Cure. I will hereafter always keep it in the house.

NO SHOW FOR WICKHAM

Judge Scribner Will Come Under the Wire

An Easy Winner on Tuesday Next.

Huron County Republicans Are Openly Bolting Their Party's Ticket.

Norwalk, O., Nov. 7.—(Special)—The special dispatch from Norwalk claiming that Wickham will be elected and that democrats here and elsewhere will vote for him creates much amusement, as its authorship is traced directly to the Wickhams.

Not one democrat can be found who will support Wickham, while some of the leading republicans of the county are openly working against Wickham.

The entire town of Bellevue will vote solidly against him and the leading republicans of the town, headed by Mayor Lauterman, are working in the three counties of the circuit adjoining there.

They claim that Wickham will not get one vote in the entire town of Bellevue.

He will be badly cut in Norwalk and his henchmen are working desperately to save him, but without avail.

The republican managers here concede his defeat.

He will probably be the worst cut man on the republican ticket in Huron county, and if his plurality is not overcome and a small plurality given for Scribner, it will be remarkable.

He will be at the least estimates several hundred votes behind his ticket.

The Bellevue Local News bolted him a month ago, and the friends of Loomis, of the Chronicle, who have bolted Johnson for congress, will also secretly cut Wickham because of the libelous attacks of Wickham's paper, The Reflector, on Loomis. Prominent republicans along the East Norwalk pike are also openly working against him and will take over a hundred votes from him.

Private reports have been received here from every county in the circuit, and in every one Scribner will lead his ticket.

GLORIOUS SUCCESS

Of the Democratic Rally at North Baltimore.

North Baltimore, Nov. 7.—(Special)—The democratic rally here Saturday night was a pronounced success and Byron F. Ritchie was accorded a most enthusiastic welcome.

Everything is Ritchie up here, as was illustrated by the demonstration and enthusiasm at Saturday night's meeting.

Mr. J. S. Shatzel presided and made a rattling speech, and was followed by Mr. Ritchie, who caught the crowd with one of the most humorous and thoroughly democratic speeches ever made here.

There were fireworks and music galore, and the meeting did a great amount of good.

THE BIG STRIKE.

State of Affairs in the City of New Orleans.

New Orleans, Nov. 7.—The effects of the strike are more apparent this morning than at any time since the trouble commenced. There are but few floats or drays to be seen on the streets, but the small spring wagons come into very general use. There are no street cars running, consequently merchants and clerks are not reaching their places of business as early as usual. Up to this hour (10:30) the city is remarkably quiet and but little business being done.

At 7 a. m. the printers struck work and the outlook for the morning papers is not bright, though they will make an effort to get out editions to-morrow.

The Daily States, being a non-union office, will publish this evening as usual.

CRISIS IN HUNGARY.

Szapary and Cabinet Have Resigned.

Vienna, Nov. 7.—Count Szapary, the Hungarian premier, has tendered the resignation of himself and colleagues to the emperor and king.

This step has been for some time regarded as inevitable for various reasons. The independence party and the moderate opposition, led by Count Apponyi, have accused the premier of acting in a treasonable manner toward Hungary, in connection with the Honved and Hentzi memorials question and the situation has also been made difficult by the disputes on certain religious issues in relation to marriages, the baptism of children of mixed marriages and so forth.

WILL BE SOME SHOOTING.

A Little Social Affair that Will Cause Trouble.

Charleston, S. C., Nov. 7.—J. G. Beckwith, of Orangeburg, went to the South Carolina Military Academy with two friends on Saturday and called for Cadet McClellan.

When the cadet appeared Beckwith struck him with a riding whip. McClellan promptly let his fist fly and brought Beckwith to his knees.

The two men grappled and separated Beckwith had received severe punishment. The encounter arose over Beckwith not allowing McClellan to meet his sister last summer. Both belong to influential families.

STAR COURSE.

The first of the Y. M. C. A. Star Course attractions will appear to-night in Wheeler's opera house, viz.: The Ovide Musin Grand Concert Co., who will furnish the finest concert ever given in Toledo, so says their manager. Ovide Musin is no doubt one of the greatest, if not the greatest, of living violinists. Do not miss hearing him and his company for love nor money.

SHOT AT A BALL.

Augusta, Ga., Nov. 7.—Five negroes were shot at a ball Saturday night and will probably die. The affray occurred at a dance on Berry's plantation, six miles from this city. A gang of men who had not been invited to the ball went there to get even with those who were. A pitched battle ensued, in which five men were fatally wounded.

A Sick Head,

a faint feeling, a bad taste in the mouth, lack of appetite, despondency, irritability, all arise from a disordered stomach. A little Carlsbad Sprudel Salt will correct these troubles, and prevent them in the future. Be sure and secure only the genuine,

MARKETS TO-DAY.

The visible supply of wheat increased last week 3,082,000 bu. Corn decreased 10,00 bu and oats 210,000 bu. In the corresponding week in 1891 wheat increased 2,740,000 bu, corn decreased 241,000 bu, oats increased 196,000 bu.

The wheat markets on this side of the ocean opened weak, but very soon put on firm appearance and advanced. The reasons given are that a cold turn in the northwest will decrease the movement. We suppose it will have the contrary effect, until winter comes along permanently. Accounts from the northwest indicate a continued large movement. Around 72c for December wheat in Chicago the fluctuations are more governed by what somebody buys and somebody sells.

Corn has been strong to-day and advanced for a weather market but as no one wants to buy No. 2 corn at Chicago for shipment abroad or consumption at home, the stock of the contract in store is a constant menace to the market.

The increase in visible wheat is much more than was anticipated, and the aggregate is now greater by about 1,000,000 bus. than ever before, and Bradstreet's wider compilation makes it 24,000,000 above.

Foreign markets are quoted as closing lower.

In New York November wheat closed at 75c, a gain of 3-8c. December 76 1-4c, a gain of 5-8c. May at 83 3-8c, a gain of 1-2c. November corn at 50 1-4c, a gain of 5-8c. December at 51 1-4c, a gain of 5-8c. May at 52 1-2c, a gain of 7-8c.

In Chicago November wheat closed at 71c, a gain of 1-4c. December at 72 1-4c and 72 3-8c, a gain of 3-8c. May at 78 1-4, a gain of 3-8c. November corn at at 42 1-8c, a gain of 1 1-4c. December at 42 3-8c, a gain of 1c. May at 46 7-8c, a gain of 7-8c. November oats at 30 7-8c, a gain of 3-8c.

In Toledo the trading in wheat futures has not been relieved of dullness and inactive feature, and the business reported is light. There is no new factor in the deal. The outlook seems bearish, but prices are better and close 1-2c up. On the call May sold at 78 1-2. On the regular board December sold at 72 1-4c, a decline of 1-4c, and closed at 73c, a gain of 1-2c; May sold at 78 1-4c, a decline of 1-4c, and closed at 79c, a gain of 1-2c. Cash wheat was dull, and the sales light; No. 2 soft at 71 to 71 1-4c, a gain of 1-4c; No. 3 soft at 63, and at close 63 1-4 was the market; a gain of 1-4c; rejected No. 1 at 60c; mixed No. 2 at 69c; hard No. 2 at 67 1-2; No. 3 at 63c.

Corn—No. 3 at 40 1-2c; No. 2 41 1-2c. Rye—No. 3 at 48 1-2c; rejected at 40c. Clover seed was about as active as usual, but lower in price; prime medium for cash at 7:30; November at $7 30; December, $7 30; January, $7 35 to $7 30; March at $7 40; No. 2 at $7 05 to $7 15.

Close in New York.

New York, Nov. 7.—Money loaned at 5@6 per cent. this morning. Exchange quiet; posted rates, 484@487 1-2; actual rates, 483 1-4 for 60 days and 486 3-4 for demand. Governments steady; currency, 6s, 107 1-2 bid; extended 2s, registered, 100 bid; 4s, coup., 114 1-4 bid.

The stock market this morning was extremely dull, traders, speculators and investors evidently not caring to trade in the face of the holiday to-morrow, but more especially because of the pending political contest which is to determine the complexion of the government for the next four years. Sales were a little over 100,000 shares by noon. Prices were irregular and but little change from those of Saturday. At 1 p. m. the market is dull and featureless.

Flour dull; fine, $1.65@2 10; superfine, $1 70@2 20; city mill extra, $4 25@4 35 for West Indies. Wheat opened unchanged but advanced 3-8c by noon; No. 2 red winter, 75@76c cash; 76 1-8c December; 83 1-8c May. Corn opened strong and advanced 3-4c by noon. No. 2 mixed 51c cash; 51 1-4c December; 52 3-8c May. Oats opened strong at 1-2c advance and at noon were dull; No. 2 mixed 35 1-2c cash; 37 1-4c December. Rye nominal Barley steady; two rowed state, 60@65c; six rowed state, 78@80c. Molasses nominal; New Orleans, 30@35c for good to fancy. Sugar refined steady; cutloaf and crushed, 5 5-16@5 1-2c; granulated, 4 15-16@5c; powdered, 4 13-16@5c; mould A, 5@5 3-16c. Rice dull but saetdy. Pork fairly active and steady; new mess, $13 25@13 75. Lard quiet; November, $9 20 bid; December, $8 45. Butter quiet and firm; creamery state extra, 28 1-2@29c; western extra, 29 1-2@30c. Cheese steady; state factory full cream, 10 5-8c. Eggs dull; state new laid choice, 25@26c; western, 24@24 1-2c. Turpentine quiet; strained, $1 30@1 35. Tallow dull; prime dull; prime city, 4 3-4c. Petroleum nominal. Freights quiet and unchanged.

Another Schooner Gone.

Ludington, Nov. 7.—Capt. Turner, of the steambarge George Dunbar, which arrived here this morning, reports having passed a white schooner capsized off Point Betsey at 1 o'clock Saturday afternoon. Capt. Turner could not make out the name of the boat, but feels certain that the entire crew were lost.

Chicago.

Chicago, Nov. 7.—It is not improbable that the schooner is the B. F. Wade. Wade had a cargo of cedar from Traverse bay bound for this city. Nothing has been heard of her for over two weeks. A young girl who said she was the daughter of the captain was inquiring at the tug office this morning if anything had been heard of the Wade.

She said her father had not been home for a long time and her mother was very anxious about him. No satisfaction could be given the child, and she left the tug offices crying bitterly.

VISIT THE CHRYSANTHEMUM SHOW.

A chrysanthemum show, which excels anything of the kind ever shown in Toledo, may be witnessed at Mrs. Suder's greenhouse, 2941 Cherry street, this week. Detroit will not have a show this season, but Toledo's popular florist has arranged one which is admirable. The varied hued blossoms nod their pretty heads in welcome to all who visit them. A cordial invitation is extended to the general public to view the beautiful sight.

TO-NIGHT!

The finest concert ever given in Toledo, is promised by the Ovide Musin grand concert company. Wheeler's opera House. Don't miss it! Prices, 25c, 50c, 75c, $1.00.

M'GLYNN'S AMBULANCE

In Demand This Morning—Railroad Men Injured.

This morning a switchman in the employ of the C., H. & D. Railroad company named Wm. Cooper, was seriously injured by being squeezed in some manner by a passing train. He was taken to his home at the corner of Clayton and Oliver streets in McGlynn's ambulance, and attended by the company's physician.

The Other Victim.

William Bodner, a laborer at the C., H. V. & T. docks, while at work this morning, had his foot crushed by a car passing over it.

McGlynn's ambulance was called and the injured man conveyed to his home on Grand street, East Toledo.

Medical aid was summoned, but it is not yet known whether amputation will be necessary or not.

FURIOUS STORMS.

Odessa, Nov. 7.—Furious storms have been raging during the past week over the Black sea. Eight vessels have been lost and the crews of three steamers drowned. Such stormy weather has not been seen on the Black sea for many months and much distress has been occasioned among sailors and fishermen, both on account of the loss of life and the number of vessels afraid to venture out to sea.

Odd olive forks—sterling, $2—Cawood.

At Lamson Bros.' you can buy Pattern Table Linens with border all around, at same price as same goods cut from the piece.

THE CITY COUNCIL.

A Big Bill of Business for To-Night.

The board of councilmen will meet to-night, and has a big schedule of business to dispose of, principally from the board of aldermen. Some of the most interesting matters for consideration are the ordinances to grant the T. C. S. Railway company the right to lay a double track on Dorr street and to the T. E. S. Railway company a like right on Ontario street, from Stickney avenue to Galena street, and to change the name of Dorr street to Fairview avenue, and resolutions from the judiciary committee, directing the city solicitor to confess judgment in the cases of John Marnath and Cass. Schalow against the city and to dismiss the case of the city against John T. Newton and others.

New hair pins and combs—Cawood's.

DAMAGED BY FIRE.

New York, Nov. 7.—Dodge & Alcot's wholesale drug warehouse, No. 86 Williams street, was damaged $50,000 by fire early this morning.

Here is a case of notable speed and endurance. Miss Tomasson, an English woman, has performed a notable feat in horsemanship, riding 220 miles in 37 1-2 hours, from Innsbruck in the Tyrol through the Brenner pass and back.

Bogus White Lead and adulterated paints would have no sale did they not afford dealers a larger profit than

Strictly Pure White Lead

The man who best guards his own interests is never persuaded to buy paint that is said to be "just as good," or "better," than Strictly Pure White Lead. The following brands are standard and always strictly pure:

ANCHOR (Cincinnati)
ARMSTRONG & McKELVY (Pittsburgh)
BEYMER-BAUMAN (Pittsburgh)
COLLIER (St. Louis)
CORNELL (Buffalo)
DAVIS-CHAMBERS (Pittsburgh)
ECKSTEIN (Cincinnati)
FAHNESTOCK (Pittsburgh)
MORLEY (Cleveland)
RED SEAL (St. Louis)
SHIPMAN (Chicago)
SOUTHERN (St. Louis and Chicago)

The National Lead Co. manufacture a line of colors to color strictly pure White Lead any shade wanted.

Pure White Lead Tinting Colors

They are put up in small packages; one pound being sufficient to tint twenty-five pounds of Lead. This makes the best paint that it is possible to put on a building.

If you are going to paint, it will pay you to send to us for a book containing information that may save you many a dollar; it will only cost you a postal card to do so.

City Auditor's Office

Toledo, Ohio, Oct. 24th, 1892.

The committee on ways and means of the Common Council of the city of Toledo, Ohio, and the undersigned invite sealed proposals at this office to

MONDAY, NOVEMBER 28TH, 1892,

at 7 o'clock p. m. for the purchase of General Fund Bonds to the amount of Seventy Thousand ($70,000) Dollars, issued for Natural Gas purposes in pursuance of authority conferred by the General Assembly of the state of Ohio, entitled "An act to supplement section 2491 of the revised statutes of Ohio, as heretofore supplemented, by enacting section 2491c and section 2491b," passed April 7, 1892, and also by an Ordinance of the Common Council of the City of Toledo which provides for the issue of General Fund Bonds of the amount of Seventy Thousand Dollars, passed May 16, 1892, for the purpose of procuring territory, right of way, sinking wells for natural gas, purchasing wells and natural gas works, purchasing and laying pipe, and supplying such city with natural gas for public and private use and consumption. Said bonds shall be of the denomination of One Thousand Dollars, and be dated July 1, 1892, to run for a period of 25 years from date, and be made payable at the Importers' and Traders' National Bank, in the City of New York, with interest at the rate of 4 1-2 per cent. per annum, payable semi-annually at the same place, to be evidenced by proper coupons attached to said bonds.

No proposal will be accepted for less than par and accrued interest from date of said bonds to date of delivery at Toledo.

Bidders will be required to state the gross amount they will pay for the bonds besides the accrued interest to date of delivery at Toledo, Ohio. They will also be required to deposit with each bid an amount of money or a certified check on some responsible bank equal to at least five (5) per centum of the par value of the bonds so bid for, as a guarantee of good faith, and that the bid so made (if successful) will be fulfilled in accordance with the terms thereof, and the requirements of the law and ordinances. When the bids have been examined, and the award made according to law, all monies or checks deposited as guarantees shall be returned to the depositor, or held by the city auditor subject to his call, except that of the successful bidder, which shall be held and considered, and accepted as part payment of the bonds so awarded or sold, but should there be any repudiation of the contract or agreement, or refusal to accept and pay for the bonds so sold then and in that case the deposit shall be forfeited to the city of Toledo, and shall become the property of said city, in compensation for loss and expenses attending the sale of said bonds and as liquidated damages for repudiation of bid. And no bid will be received if not accompanied by money or check aforesaid.

The right is reserved to reject any or all bids.

Proposals should be addressed to the "Auditor of the City of Toledo, Ohio," and be endorsed "Proposals for Gas Bonds."

JAS. H. PHRAETT, City Auditor.

COSTLY PERFUMES.

Attar of Roses, Ambergris and Musk Are Particularly Rare.

Only dealers in precious stones carry more valuable stock in a small space than the dealers in essential oils and the perfumes that go with such oils. One dealer showed an acquaintance a moderate-sized safe containing stock valued at $120,000. Attar of roses, musk, civet and ambergris are among the precious articles of such a dealer's stock. Attar of roses wholesales at about $8 an ounce, civet at $12 an ounce, ambergris at $30 and musk at $40. The retail price of all these things is much greater, but they are usually sold to the so-called consumer in highly diluted form.

The whale that secretes ambergris has become so scarce now that little of the perfume is found, and it is hard to obtain in this market at any price. Ambergris is sometimes found floating at sea in regions frequented by the whale that secretes the material. A newly established wholesale drug firm made a large profit on a fortunate purchase of ambergris. A ship came into port with several barrels, and the ship master had no clear notion of its value. The druggist bought it at $2.50 an ounce, about one-tenth of its value, and sold it in small quantities at a great advance.

Musk in the raw looks a good deal like axle grease and smells worse. The popular notion that the musk of commerce is obtained from the muskrat is a mistake. Negroes in the south do obtain a somewhat similar perfume from the muskrat, but most of the supply comes from the musk deer, a creature that is carefully raised in India for the sake of the secretion. The secretion is shipped in its crude state, and is used not only in the manufacture of the liquid perfume sold as musk, but also in very small quantities to give strength and staying power to many perfumes made from the essential oils of flowers. Curiously enough, the blossoms of two native plants have a noticeable musky odor. One is the small yellow blossom of a creeping vine known as the musk plant. Its odor is marked, and it is counterfeited in the commercial perfume called musk. The other is the bloodroot. The pure white blossom of that early spring plant has a distinct though delicate musky odor. A bean known as the musk bean is a cheap substitute for animal musk. Civet is a greasy and intensely strong secretion of the animal of that name. As sold by the dealers in essential oils, it is yellow in color and of about the consistency of honey. Like musk, it is not used at its full strength, but is diluted and dissolved in alcohol, or is used as an auxiliary to other perfumes.—Commercial Advertiser.

TRIBUTE.

While it is over thirty years ago since Allcock's Porous Plasters were first introduced to the medical profession and public, the marked success and unprecedented popularity which they met with not only continues, but steadily increases. No other plasters have been produced which gain so many testimonials of high value as those continuously accorded to Allcock's Porous Plasters, and the only motive for these exceptional tributes lies in the fact of their being a medicinal and pharmaceutical preparation of superior value. Additional proof of the true value of Allcock's Porous Plasters lies in the fact that they are being largely imitated by unscrupulous persons, who seek to deceive the public by offering plasters which they claim to be the "same," "equal," "as good," "better," "best porous plaster," etc., while it is in general appearance only that they resemble Allcock's. Every one of the so-called porous plasters are imitations of Allcock's Porous Plasters.

Avoid dealers who attempt to palm off inferior and worthless plasters that are purchased by them at low rates for the purpose of substitution.

IN OLD TIMES.

Catharine de Medici imported muffs into France from Italy.

Corsets have been worn on the waists of Egyptian mummies.

Puffed and slashed coats and breeches came in with Henry VIII.

On festive occasions both Greeks and Romans wore garlands of flowers.

Shoes with heels six inches high were worn at the court of Louis XIV.

Gloves with separate fingers were unknown before the twelfth century.

The huge Elizabethan ruff was held in place by an underpropping of wire.

Greek women went barefooted indoors and wore sandals when walking abroad.

Fashion plates came into use during the last quarter of the eighteenth century.

Sunshades formed like the umbrella were held over Roman ladies by slaves.

Several thousands of hair pins in many styles have been recovered from Pompeii.

Pockets in ladies' dresses first appeared in England during the reign of Edward III.

The wigs of the time of Louis XIV. were of horse hair, the cheaper kinds of tow.

In the reign of Louis XIV. the hats of the ladies were two feet high and four wide.

From the fourteenth to the eighteenth century dressed dolls served as models of fashion.

All Greek girls dressed in white, colored goods being regarded as immodest for a maiden.

The shoes of the Norman-English kings were of yellow, blue, green and red cloth, or leather.

Skirts embroidered by hand and costing $50 each came in fashion in the reign of Elizabeth.

In the eleventh century both English and French dandies covered their arms with bracelets.

For three centuries a Paris doll, the fashion mold, was exhibited in Venice on Ascension Day.

The tournet de nez, which concealed the lower part of the face, succeeded the masks of 1580.

In the early days of Henry VII. the gentlemen's hats bore plumes sometimes half a yard long.

Black patches shaped like stars, crescents, horseshoes, and even like coaches and horses, were worn by the ladies of the court of Anne.

IN OLDEN TIMES

People overlooked the importance of permanently beneficial effects and were satisfied with transient action, but now that it is generally known that Syrup of Figs will permanently cure habitual constipation, well-informed people will not buy other laxatives, which act for a time, but finally injure the system.

MOTHER CROWDED OUT.

"After a mother is 50 years old there is no longer any room for her in the world, and she ought to die.' " The words were bitter, but they were not bitterly spoken, writes Mrs. M. E. Songster. Rather, the intonations of the patient voice were plaintive and the care-lined face of the elderly woman who uttered the sentiment wore no look of protest. Instead, there was in it an expression of resignation, of acquiescence in something which must be accepted and endured.

Thinking of the many aged mothers loved to idolatry by the men and women who are their "bairns" still, albeit some of them have silver hair and bent shoulders, thinking of the middle-aged who bear as unquestioned a sceptre as when their babies were in the nursery, though these are now "young people" with the hopes and aspirations and work of the young, I wondered whether my friend were not a solitary sufferer. Observation has convinced me to the contrary, and it is my conviction that somebody should uplift a note of warning in the ears of thoughtless, not heartless daughters.

"The wind is in the east this morning," said a girl at the breakfast table, with a significant glance around at her brothers and sisters and a little pucker of the mouth in the direction of the matron whose hand trembled a little as she poured out the coffee.

"Your mother is very tired and evidently not well," ventured an acquaintance, later, when "mother's irritability" was freely discussed in her hearing by these young people.

"That may be," said one of them, lightly, "but she needn't be so cross. We are all willing to do our share in helping her, but she doesn't know that the world may have moved since her day."

Neither did the young daughter realize that, however far the world may have moved since the mother's "day," it never has moved and never will, from the shadow of the Fifth commandment.

I have a standing quarrel, too, with the statement that a person's "day" is pre-eminently her day of youth. There is a "day" for 40, for 60, for 80 and each "day" is as important and as honorable, if well spent, as the other—the latter as gloryfull as the earlier. There is one beauty of the rosebuds, and another beauty of the ripened wheat, and another again of the snowflake.

But, of course, I know what girls mean when they talk of old people who have had their day. And I am always greatly perplexed and troubled when I see that the effect of education, in a wider sense than the mother knew, has been to make the younger look down upon or patronize the elder woman. The plain mother has made sacrifices, some of them very heavy, to obtain for her children the opportunities and advantages of the best schools. She has toiled early and late, spent lonely hours, felt in her soul at times a humiliating depression because she could not keep pace with her children, and it is, pardon me for saying it, simply low and mean for her daughters ever to snub her, or to be impatient with her, or to maneuver to keep in the background.

Girls, you cannot be too tender of your mothers in the every day round. Don't let them be crowded out.

THE CHRYSANTHEMUM.

The chrysanthemums have been cultivated in China and Japan almost from prehistoric time. The plant is prized in the humblest cottage as well as in the home of the most exalted Mandarin. The name of the plant is derived from the Greek words chryson, gold, and anthos, a flower, the literal meaning being gold flower. In the species grandiflorum, and numerous others this name is fully justified. The plant is found in many countries. The barren steppes of Siberia produce it and it is also found in Kamtchatka, in Africa, and many parts of Europe. In Japan, says Morton, the "Imperial Order of the Chrysanthemum" is the most distinguished decoration of the Empire. It was founded in 1876 and consists of a star and collar and hung around the neck by a ribbon, the whole work being in gold, silver and enamels. Bestowed, with rare exceptions only upon royal personages, it is consequently considered a very high distinction among European sovereigns who have been favored with this mark of the Mikado's favor. The chrysanthemum or "kiku," as it is called in Japan, is also one of the crest badges of the imperial family, and is used as an official seal. The hilts of the swords forged by the Emeperor Go Toba, who ascended the throne in 1186, had the kiku figured upon them. The chrysanthemum season in Japan is looked forward to with much pleasure, and the different communities manifest the utmost enthusiasm in the culture of the plant. A certain day is set apart as a festival, when all turn out to pay due homage to their national emblem, the many hued chrysanthemum. During the blooming season the florists's gardens present an exhibition of great beauty. Each evening for many weeks the notables of rank, as well as the peasants in holiday attire, join in the festivities. The fetes are held in the evening and the grounds are always beautifully illuminated, presenting a scene brilliant beyond description. The Mikado always opens the gardens of the imperial palace on this fete day. All the native dignitaries and foreigners of distinction are present, and invitations are always highly prized and much sought after. It is one of the few occasions when the empress is seen in public. She delights in dainty handkerchiefs of gauze embroidered in chrysanthemums of all colors. Her ladies of honor also appear in gorgeous dresses worked with chrysanthemums. Nowhere can chrysanthemum blossoms be seen in such profusion, so fully developed and in such brilliant colors, while the rich imperial violet silk with which the buildings and tents are draped bear upon them the heraldic chrysanthemum in all its pristine loveliness.

A MAN OF PATENTS.

Genial "Dagonet" Sims Describes One of Our Countrymen.

There was an American in the railway carriage to Liverpool. This gentleman dressed with elaborate care, and kept on producing instruments of a remarkable character from his pockets. He was a man who was evidently thoroughly equipped for all the contingencies of everyday life.

A blue bottle got into our carriage, and he produced a flypaper, on which it promptly settled and died. He wanted to smoke, and he took out a pipe with 17 distinct and separate patents in it. He filled it from a pouch which was absolutely remarkable for its ingenuity. He put the tobacco in with a patent spoon, he rammed it down with a metal stopper, then he put a skewer, which he wore attached to a silver chain, up the stem, then he stabbed the tobacco with a stiletto to make the pipe draw more easily, and then he kindled a light by means of an elaborate arrangement in six compartments, which took about fifteen minutes to fit together.

After that he hung his hat up by a patent hat suspender, put on his gloves with a button-hook, squirted himself all over with a scent spray, cut his newspaper with a paper cutter that was also a railway key and a boot-jack, and wrapped himself up in a patent rug, which by pulling various strings, could be made into an overcoat, a mackintosh, a bed-quilt, a life-belt, a tablecloth and a shroud.

Finally he went to sleep, after setting a pocket alarm to wake him up in an hour, and putting a patent catch on his watch chain in case either of us should be taken suddenly with kleptomania.—George R. Sims, in the Referee

THE FIRST AMERICAN SPOON.

Do you know who was the first spoon manufacturer of these United States? Well, he bore the highly appropriate name of William Mix and was a blacksmith by trade. Mix builded better than he knew, but it would grieve him to see to what mad heights the spoon business has now come, and that a reaction has at length set in. Having surprised the world almost out of its wits, a spoon as a utensil has become out of fashion. The designing designer is exhausted. Of course the result was expected, and having supplied millions with millions of spoons of every imaginable size and pattern, fickle fashion says we shall not use them. Perhaps one can yet stir a cup of tea or coffee with the proper spoon, but that is all. No edible, however liquid, should be spooned, unless the consumer thereof wishes to be considered bad form.

It is a great pity, but what could be expected with a hundred or more fancy spoons on a collector's hands? A few conservative believers in the goodness of "spoon victuals" may rebel and utterly refuse to eat ice cream or pudding sauce with the aid of forks, but in that case their friends will be justified in labeling them freaks and sending them over to the nearest dime museum.—Boston Herald.

ROBBING A 'GATOR'S NEST.

One day quite recently Ben Wichers found a nest of baby alligators in Kersey lake and proceeded at once to gather them in. About the time he had captured all he could conveniently handle, he saw the old mother 'gator, who was a monster 12 feet in length, coming straight at him with wide open jaws. As he had no gun with him he did the next best thing and took to his heels as fast as he could run, with the big alligator after him and gaining at every jump.

Then he began to spill the baby 'gators along the road, hoping the old saurian would stop to attend to them. But in this he was disappointed, for the old mother 'gator kept right along after him in dead earnest.

He made for a vacant house near by, and fortunately found the door unlocked, but just as he banged the door shut he saw the furious old mother just coming up the steps with blazing eyes and open jaws. He threw the last baby 'gator into the extended jaws of its mother, as he closed the door.—San Antonio Herald.

JUSTIFIABLE HOMICIDE.

Simkins was a creature who wore trousers. He was rich and respectable. He didn't have to earn his own living. He was a butterfly of fashion. That's why trousers looked queer on him.

He went to teas. He never led a german. He hadn't the capacity for that. He did have the capacity, though, for falling in love. As usual in such cases he fell in love with a superior girl. Dreams and dudes go by contraries.

So did the girl. She wouldn't have it a little bit.

"What shall I do! What shall I do!" he moaned.

"You might commit suicide heroically," she suggested coldly.

"But that would be murder," he exclaimed, horrified.

"I think not," she said, assuringly. "Any jury in the country would call it justifiable homicide without leaving the box."

New Hampshire was named from Hampshire county, in England, by John Mason, of the Plymouth company, to whom the territory was originally granted by the English government.
